"Soul-Twin" Is Old Ireland May Teach Us 48 Policies, Alas Mary McNally's Case

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Young Mr. Garland acquired a "soul-twin," first name Lillian, and they tell how "it all started" with the reading of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass."

"To drive free, to love free,
To leap to the heavens of the love indicated to me."

There's nothing new in foolishness. Nearly six hundred years ago, when Dante met unfortunate Francesca Da Rimini, in hell, with her "soul-twin," Francesca told Dante that "it all began" when

"One day, for our delight we read of Lancelot.
How him love thrall'd. Alone we were," etc.

Francesca added, "The book and writer both were love's purveyors."

Just there you read Dante's famous passage borrowed by Tennyson, beginning: "Nessun Maggior Dolore." "No greater grief than to remember days of joy, when misery is at hand." (Cary's translation.)

Quite a difference between the modern bourgeois soul-twins of Massachusetts and the young couple that aroused Dante's sympathy even in hell.

Ireland may develop possibilities useful to this country. The new Ireland proposes to experiment with national ownership of railroads and other natural monopolies.

We are told here that the people are too dull and our officials too dishonest to make government ownership possible. But, if the Irish make a success of it, we may give it a trial.

Government at least could borrow money for its railroads without paying 8 per cent. interest. That saving would amount to something. It could also put railroads in the hands of railroad men, instead of leaving them in the hands of bankers by whom half the roads have been put into, or near, bankruptcy.

Pertinax, able and excitable French writer, says "The United States is now incapable of having any European policy."

It would be lucky for the United States if that were so. Unfortunately, the forty-eight united States, through their officials, seem capable of forty-eight different European policies, and every different policy costs us more money than the other. We once had a real European policy: "Leave Europe alone."

Mary McNally's case presents a picture of civilization. She had been at the head of her class. Her mother died, she was fourteen, she had to do the housework, take care of two young brothers and a sister, prepare breakfast for her father every morning, clean the house, help the children, feed them, and then go to school.

She was punished severely at home because she did not manage well enough. At school they gave her low marks. Her studies were poorly done. She turned on the gas, inhaled as much as she could, until they found her. She will probably recover.

There are tens of thousands of such children, but they are not as interesting as the young lady photographed on the sands at Palm Beach: or giving exact details as to why she turned "soul-twin."

Different countries—different modesty. One moralist complains that poets must now describe two sets of dimples, one in the cheeks, the other in the knees of young ladies. An earnest, practical member of the school board in Newark, N. J., has only five more days to serve, but he is determined to make the high school girls cover their knees. Those knees, he believes, threaten the nation's welfare.

In Turkey that good man would find thousands of women that would think nothing of showing their knees, but would rather die than show their faces.

The real and only objection to the bare knees is the danger to health. In cold weather the big blood vessels would be exposed and be "compelled to heat all outdoors," as one doctor put it.

Senator La Follette says the trouble with farmers, facing ruin, is "too much monopoly."

"Industry, commerce and finance have taken on monopoly forms," says La Follette. Monopolies control big factories, raw materials, transportation, credits. Quite naturally; the farmer, disorganized, sweats alone, sells alone, and nobody's boss, depending on railroads for one thing, on the bank for another, has had a poor chance.

The answer to the farmer might be, "Why don't YOU organize? You have in your hand the greatest, most necessary of all monopolies, FOOD. Keep eggs, butter, meat, milk, vegetables on the farm and the banker will soon accommodate you."

DICKERMAN EFFUSIONS ARE READ

Crowded Courtroom at $100,000 Alienation Suit Thrilled by Burning Epistles

One bushel of love missives, teeming with undying love for his sweetheart and wife, were introduced and thrilled a crowded courtroom in the $100,000 suit of Mrs. Eugenie E. Dickerman against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Minnie L. Dickerman, for alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Robert Eliot Dickerman. All the principals live in Somerville.

The suit is being heard before Judge Stanley E. Qua and a jury in the East Cambridge Superior Civil Court. All day yesterday, the second of the trial, spectators were given one thrill after another as the love letters were read. So burning were some of the "boy" lover's toasts to his middle-aged, attractive, brunette wife, that many of the stylishly gowned women, young and old, blushed unashamed.

And during some of the most fiery passages as young Dickerman poured out his love, the faces of the twelve men sitting in judgment, nearly all of them married, turned crimson, and for long periods they modestly glanced down at the floor.

It is called the most sensational love suit heard in Middlesex County for years. Witnesses from many sections of the country will be summoned to testify before it is finished.

WILSON GOES ON RAIDING

Swoops Down on Stills All Over Greater Boston; Says He Will Stay Until Officially Removed

"I shall remain on the job until the proper credentials are produced to put me out," today declared Elmer D. Wilson, whose dismissal as prohibition enforcement officer of this district was announced from Washington.

"I shall stay in my office until I am formally put out. In the mean while I will go on enforcing the law. I intend to die game. I will take no cognizance of my dismissal until I am officially informed of it."

Wilson made raids in Somerville, Chelsea, Jamaica Plain and Dedham after unofficial word arrived that he had been ousted.

Although he had a severe cold, Wilson led several raids in Somerville in person.

At the fruit store of Orange Rubin on Washington street, Somerville, a pint of moonshine was seized. The same amount was taken at the home of Patrick Monahan. In a Chinese laundry four gallons of moonshine were found.

On Morton street, Somerville, the home of Wilfred Guyette, agents seized fourteen three-quarter gallon containers of moonshine.

CHELSEA RAIDS.

A fifty-gallon still, three gallons of moonshine and nine barrels of mash were found on the premises of Phillip Smith on Washington avenue, Chelsea. Two fifty-gallon stills, five gallons of moonshine and 800 gallons of

BABY LEFT TO DIE ON TRACKS

Railroad Man Finds Infant Alive in Pasteboard Box Near Cottage Farm Bridge

Edwin Lashman, a section foreman on the Boston & Albany Railroad, was fighting his way through the storm today, when, about 500 feet west of Cottage Farm Bridge, Allston, he heard the pitiful, quavering cry of a baby.

The wind had swept the tracks clean and there was light enough to show that the child could not be there. Lashman began searching, the cries guiding him.

Finally he saw a small pasteboard box, tied with a bit of rag twisted into a string.

Inside the box, without covering or clothing, save for a single cloth, was a baby girl, its little lips and body blue with the cold.

One tiny hand was thrust into the child's mouth and between its cries the little girl sucked vigorously on the encircled fist.

Lashway wrapped the small body in his muffler and carried it to a nearby roundhouse, where there was a stove. Then he notified the police and the child was rushed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton, where it was said that despite the exposure, it probably would survive.

Investigation showed that the child could not have been long in the box. There was no hint of how it got down into the gully beside the tracks where it was found. The spot is inaccessible from the street, unless the person wishing to reach there had gone to the nearest station and then walked along the tracks. But to do this the person would have been seen and stopped.

If the box had been dropped from a passing train, say the police, the box undoubtedly would have been smashed and the baby killed. Police are still investigating the affair.

BOGUS BABIES USED TO DUPE BLACKMAIL VICTIMS

Babies from foundling institutions were used by the Boston Blackmail Ring to intimidate stubborn victims in extreme cases, according to disclosures today. Officials were shocked at the discovery that infants two and three months old were employed as part of the properties of the nefarious traffic in this city.

A prominent business man, who tried the gang when they tried to "shake him down" for a large sum in the original trap, was pursued for months without satisfaction, and then the blackmailers resorted to a new ruse.

One day the young woman in the case who had been used as the "lure" confronted the man with an infant in arms. She told him with a display of feigned emotion that it was "our child." The man was hurried and according to reports, paid a large sum convinced that he was being blackmailed but satisfied to get rid of the

MYSTERY CLOUDS SUICIDE ATTEMPT

Bernice Boucher Consumes 28 Tablets; Calls Help of Neighbors

Miss Bernice Boucher, thirty-one years old and beautiful, is dying at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton, as the result of taking twenty-eight poison tablets while alone in her apartment at No. 1738 Commonwealth avenue, Allston.

The young woman staggered from her suite to the door of the next apartment, pounded on the panels and sank to the floor. Her neighbors carried her to a couch and summoned Dr. F. E. Jones of No. 48 Corey road, Brookline. He ordered her immediate removal to the hospital.

Before lapsing into unconsciousness, the young woman said faintly she had taken twenty-eight tablets. She gave no reason for her act. A bottle marked poison, stood empty on a table in her apartment. The young woman, it was learned, had purchased the bottle of tablets at a nearby drug store several hours before.

LITTLE KNOWN GIRL.

Little is known of Miss Boucher, her neighbors understood she came to Boston recently from the home of her mother in Toronto, Canada. Others had heard she was the widow of an army captain who had lost is life overseas in the World War.

Search of her apartment failed to reveal a motive for an attempt to take her life. There were no letters or any other papers that would give a clue to her identity. She hired the suite a short time ago.

At St. Elizabeth's Hospital physicians said the young woman's condition was critical. They feared she could not recover from the deadly effects of the great number of poison tablets. Her name was placed on the danger list.

The case was made more baffling by the fact that just before the young woman became unconscious she asked neighbors to call a "Mr. Boyer." He was at a Jamaica Plain address and responded promptly. He rode to the hospital in the ambulance and then is reported to have left for his home in Marlboro.

Neighbors said they saw the man Boyer at the apartment of the young woman several times.

SAID TO HAVE SON.

Some of them said they understood she had a son who was attending a school at Southbridge, that the boy was seriously sick, and that was the cause of her despondency. The boy, they understood, had never seen his father. Other neighbors said that the woman was unmarried.

Mrs. Mary T. Willis, who lives across the hall from the Boucher woman, was entertaining several women friends at luncheon when the knock came on the door. As she fell to the floor the victim of the poison tablets became hysterical. Mrs. Willis and her friends assisted the woman to a couch in her apartment and then summoned Dr. Jones.

The police believe that the woman may have taken some of the poison tablets the day before, as they learned that Boyer, who was calling on Miss Boucher, went to the Willis apartment and complained that his friend was sick. She was given medicine and later said she felt better.

U. S. OFFICIALS SOUGHT FALL OF OBREGON

Rebels Given Definite Assurance of This Fact Last Summer

By Universal Service.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Definite assurances that the American government desired the overthrow of the existing Mexican government were given to revolutionists last Summer, Universal Service today is able to reveal specific statements made by a high American to that effect. A letter dated July 8, written partly in code, names some of the highest American officials.

Flagrant representations that these officials were eagerly awaiting the collapse of the Obregon administration, were made by those who appeared to speak for oil and banking groups. The officials named by the wealthy plotters remained in utter ignorance of the misuse of their names. Indications are that the very officials quoted so voluminously and falsely were themselves constantly misinformed by agents of wealth; for it sets in a way that served to block recognition of President Alvaro Obregon.

The letter disclosed today will be turned over to the congressional investigation committee. Representative Tom Connally of Texas introduced a resolution in the House asking for a complete investigation of the situation.

In previous disclosures, Universal Service has shown where the plotters did not hesitate to use the names of President Harding, Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of the Interior Fall, Attorney General Daugherty and other men high in public life. Today other names are added to the list employed by the conspirators.

H. L. WILSON NAMED.

Among these is the name of Henry Lane Wilson, former Ambassador to Mexico. His code name was "Wade." A paragraph excerpt from this letter of July 8, sent from New York to Los Angeles by a representative of the oil group is that apparently had drawn away from the National Association for the protection of American rights in Mexico, reads, with the code names replaced by the correct names:

"Yesterday I had a conference with Henry Lane Wilson. This gentleman had a conference with Secretary of State Hughes on Thursday of last week. Mr. Hughes told him, first, that the American government had nothing to do with Diaz. President Obregon would not sign; second, that the American government would not recede from any of its demands; third, that the American government would back and support that started a revolution in Mexico."

Yesterday in the ranks of the National Association came about over a question of leadership of the revolution against Obregon. The National Association, it is indicated, confined their negotiations to the movement of Pablo Gonzalez. Thomas F. Lee, executive director of the National Association, was the famous "long letter" and sent it by Professor Leon Leroy on July 1, 1921, to Laredo, Tex., where it was relayed to Pablo Gonzalez.

The insurgent group, led by a wealthy man, preferred the leadership of Manuel Pelaez or Esteban Cantu. The latter was to take the field in the event Pelaez failed. There followed a rapid train of negotiations on either side to prepare a revolutionary leader for definite activities against Obregon. It was a race between the groups to get their respective revolutionists busy.

LEE'S NAME APPEARS.

For the first time in this correspondence emanating from the representative of the group that had drawn away from the National Association the name of Thomas F. Lee appears. He was known in the code books of the plotters as "Lane." He was the to tell the sender of the letter of July 8 of the visit of the Gonzalez' aids to the latter stated.

While the letter of the July 6 letter was a man closely identified with the revolutionary plans of Pelaes and Cantu.

The sender introduced the name of Lee as follows:

"The man who first gave me this information was Mr. Thomas F. Lee, and it has been confirmed from several sources."

It was shortly before this that Lee met J. L. Bryan of Cleveland in Washington and was told that Gonzalez had been chosen to head a revolution against Obregon. Also at about this time Lee was approached by Henry Dickson of Monterey, Mexico, a relative of Gonzalez by marriage. Dickson was an accredited representative of Gonzalez. His name in codes employed by Lee was "brother-in-law." In the code in which the July 6 letter was cloaked, Dickson was known as "Durel," for her adds, decoded.

"This supporter of Gonzalez was here Friday and had a conference with Thomas F. Lee and Bryan for a conference today, Wednesday, with Senor Fuentes, Secretary Fall and Under Secretary of State Fletcher."

of 1913. Friends of the young millionaire could not understand why Hale, with his wealth and social position, should marry a milliner, but Dan Cupid had done his work well, and the attractive young milliner stepped out of the little millinery shop and walked to the altar with the young Hale scion.

BORN POOR GIRL.

Mary Wilson was born a poor girl. Her father was John T. Wilson of Brighton. Miss Wilson had ambitions and set about early to fulfill them. After graduating from the Brighton High School she taught herself the millinery trade and in partnership with Miss Mary L. McEnany, she opened a millinery shop in Roxbury. Aggressive and possessing keen business ability as well as the ability to win friends, Miss Wilson made the little store pay, and in a short time moved the shop to Boylston street. It soon developed into one of the fashionable places and her dream of being a success in business came true.

As the business increased Miss Wilson was forced to make many trips to Europe. On one of these trips while in Lucerne, Switzerland, Miss Wilson entered a famous beauty contest. The beautiful Boston milliner was awarded first prize. A sensation was created at the contest when one of the French judges in the contest kicked one of the German judges in the shins. Great dissension followed for some time, and there were many duels threatened before the excitement died down.

GREAT ROMANCE.

Then came the great romance that culminated in the defeat of the society girls and a complete victory for the little milliner. She met Robert Sever Hale, of splendid family and very wealthy—a much older man than she. The result was the marriage on December 23, 1913, which so stirred Boston society. Following the wedding the couple sailed for Europe for an extended wedding tour.

But matrimony did not change Mrs. Hale. She decided not to give up her Boylston street shop, and although the wealth of her husband remained actively at the helm. Friends and relatives of Hale were aghast at the idea, but the little milliner held to her purpose.

In 1916 a sensation was created when Mrs. Hale was arrested by customs officials in New York charged with undervaluation of hats and clothing. The sensation of the arrest was wiped out by a greater one when Judge Alston G. Dayton, a Southerner, refused to send her to jail, declaring that his "chivalrous Southern soul revolted" against sending a beautiful woman to prison." He fined her $50, which was promptly paid.

ASKS INJUNCTION.

Nothing more was made known to the public of the life of the young millinery and her millionaire husband until this week, when she filed action in the Equity Session of the Superior Court asking for an injunction restraining Bourdon from entering her place of business.

Following this action it became known that Mrs. Hale and her husband were separated. Hale lives at No. 238 Bay State road, in a luxurious apartment. He will not comment on any phase of the situation.

It has also been learned that Mrs. Hale has for some time lived at No. 108 St. Mary's street—just a short distance from the home of her husband. There she was frequently visited by Bourdon, according to tenants of the house and the landlord. Many stormy scenes are said to have occurred there by the two. Finally, according to the landlord, one of the bitter arguments led to a hallway and tenants made so much complaint that the landlord refused to renew the lease of Mrs. Hale. She was told that he would allow her to live there if she would order Bourdon to stay away. The result was that she moved.

CHARGES INSULTS.

Now she claims that Bourdon has been abusive to her, has insulted her on the street, before her customers and in the presence of her employes. She declares that Bourdon also threatened her with bodily harm.

Bourdon came into the limelight when he appeared as co-defendant with Godfrey Cabot, Robert D. Weston, Hector M. Holmes and Mitchell C. Hollins in the famous Oakley papers case. It was alleged that Cabot employed Bourdon to spy on Oakley to gain information for the Watch and Ward Society. He is well known about Boston and vicinity. Since the filing of the court action by Mrs. Hale there have been two private detectives employed by her at the entrance to her shop on Boylston street.

Just what prompted the separation of Hale and his pretty wife has not been disclosed. Neither has it been disclosed whether or not Mrs. Hale lives alone at his apartment and Mrs. Hale just at present is remaining away from the home of her husband.

Mrs. Hale has been a prominent figure in the woman suffrage movement in Massachusetts. On one famous occasion, clad in Highland kilts and tartan, Mrs. Hale led a suffrage parade in Boston.

Hale is a member of the Tennis and Racquet Club, the Harvard Club and many other prominent clubs and is connected with the Hale Boston company.

girl and her irate "relatives" and "lawyers."

The infant used in this case was a sweet-faced little girl of three months. She was adopted by one of the black mail gang, who got her in a New Jersey foundling asylum, and revelations later resulted in the child being returned to the institution. Nor was that a rare instance, according to information made public today for the first time. Nothing was too daring for the Boston blackmailers, according to one of the State officials who has spent months investigating the extortion gang.

BANK PROBE ON.

In legal and political circles curiosity was expressed today as to when Attorney-General Allen will present evidence to the Suffolk County Grand Jury against the lawyers and others implicated in the confession of William J. Corcoran and by the testimony offered at the trial of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier.

The grand jury will at a brief session today complete its inquiry into the muddled affairs of the Commercial Trust Company. Then he was deported to Germany.

CHELSEA TWINS SAVED FROM DEATH BY SMOKE

Dorothy and Walter Dean, four-year-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dean of No. 2 Lash street, Chelsea, were overcome by smoke from a fire started in their bedroom, while they were playing with matches. They were rescued by their father, who carried them, unconscious, from the smoke-filled chamber. The children were taken to the Chelsea Memorial Hospital, and after treatment, taken back home.

SOUTH BOSTON MAN DIES AT HOME OF FRIEND

Max Rabutnick, sixty years old, of No. 102 Lawrence avenue, Roxbury, proprietor of a tailoring shop at No. 245 D street, South Boston, dropped dead from heart disease in the home of a friend, Ida Mitchell, on Dec. 27 in the street, South Boston, just as Dr. William J. LINCOLN, NOTED 'INTERNATIONAL SPY,' CAUGHT

New York, Jan. 28.—After eluding the Secret Service of the United States for several months, Lmathus T. Trebisch Lincoln, "international spy," was arrested in this city by an agent of the Department of Justice. Lincoln entered this country surreptitiously last November, after naturalization had been denied.

He was born in Hungary, became a naturalized British citizen and elected a member of the British Parliament. His preferment while there resulted in a warrant for his arrest as a spy, but he escaped to the United States.

In August, 1915, Lincoln made a sensational escape from a deputy United States marshal in New York. Three months later he was recaptured, extradited to England, and served a sentence of three years. Then he was deported to Germany.

Finds New England Red Haired Girls Are Bow-Legged

The discovery that New England girls who have red hair are almost invariably either bow-legged or knock-kneed has been made by William H. Sullivan, secretary of the Associated Millinery Industry of New England, who is selecting local college girls for models at the annual fashion show in the Copley-Plaza on February 16.

The blondes and brunettes, Sullivan says, usually have perfectly straight legs; but a red-headed girl who is thus equipped is indeed a rarity, according to his observations.

Sullivan, who is still seeking models, says that he finally managed to find one girl with red hair and shapely legs, but that a barber had spoiled her charms by bobbing her hair. He refuses to accept girls with bobbed hair.

$500,000 SUIT FILED AGAINST MRS. WALLACE

Rochester, N. H., Jan. 28.—Another legal suit of immense proportions, which demands a fair-sized fortune as a settlement of its claim, has been filed against Mrs. Alice F. Wallace, millionaire widow of this town.

Last October Mrs. Wallace was sued for $250,000 by Mrs. Harry Bond street of Bay State road, Boston, who charged alienation of her husband's love.

Now a suit for $500,000 has been brought against her by George M. Wallace of Lynn, a cousin of her late husband, Sumner Wallace, who died in 1920.

With her in this second suit is joined George F. Pothier, executor of the estate of the late Albert Wallace, her husband's brother.

Albert and Sumner Wallace were associated with George Wallace some twenty years ago in the ownership of the E. G. and E. Wallace Silex Company. Albert and Sumner then bought out George Wallace's interest in the firm, it is said, and conducted it alone.

George Wallace is now claiming the half million which his suit asks as money due him from the estate of the dead brothers. The defendants are allowed twenty days in which to file their answer. Lawyers point out that the plaintiff waited until the last day of the two-year limit allowed by law before filing his claim.

In the alienation suit, Mrs. Wallace is charged with having caused Harry S. Bradstreet to fall in love with her while she was consulting him in regard to business matters. She replied by intimating that the suit was "blackmail."

DE VALERA MADE HEAD OF WORLD IRISH SOCIETY

By Universal Service.

Paris, Jan. 28.—The lion and the lamb lay down together at the Irish Congress when Owen McNeill and Arthur Griffith seconded the nomination of De Valera, who was unanimously elected president of the new world Irish organization formed to combat British anti-Irish propaganda.

McNeil, acting on orders from Mike Collins, asked De Valera whether he intended to use the organization, which is avowedly republican, against the constitutional Irish government. De Valera replied in the negative, whereupon McNeil seconded his nomination. At the same time he stated that no counter organization would be founded by Griffith.

Despite rigorous secrecy at the sessions enjoined by De Valera it leaked out today that the league plans to send unofficial ambassadors to every civilized country to enroll Irish throughout the world in one great organization. Followers of Griffith are plainly becoming nervous over these plans.

FLORENCE BURNS IS HELD ON GUN CHARGE

New York, Jan. 28.—Another charge was added to the criminal record of Florence Burns, when during a raid on a house on East Thirty-first street, she "covered" Detective John F. Drake of Inspector Coleman's staff with a loaded revolver, and threatened to kill him if he moved. Magistrate Burns in Yorkville court, held her on a charge of felonious assault, and in $1,000 for violation of the Sullivan Act. Florence Burns was first arrested in 1902 on a charge of killing Walter Brooks, but was discharged before the case went to the jury. Since then, as Florence Rutledge, she was arrested for extortion, and sentenced to from seven to fourteen years in Auburn prison.

42 PUPILS NEAR DEATH WHEN CEILING FALLS

Warned by Girl, Manchester, N. H., Children Leave Room Just Before Crash

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 28.—Forty-two children narrowly escaped death or serious injury by a margin of seconds when a heavy plaster ceiling in their schoolroom collapsed.

Miss Hazel McCalhoush, thirteen years old, gave the warning just as the direction ceiling fell.

An avalanche of plaster and steel lathing descended, breaking desks into kindling wood, just as the pupils were about to file into the room.

Miss Isabelle Holland, the teacher, despite the warning of the cracking ceiling dashed into the room and secured her little girl.

She crossed the threshold into the hallway, where the class had halted just as the ceiling fell with a roar.

MANY WOONSOCKET FIRES START "FIREBUG" PROBE

Woonsocket, R. I., Jan. 28.—Fire and police officials are investigating the unprecedented number of fires in this city in the past month with a view to ascertaining if a "firebug" is at work. There have been twenty-one bell alarms, among them three general alarms, since January 1. Most of the fires have taken places at night.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY KILLS HIS FATHER

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Jan. 28.—Albert Fisher, fifty-five years old, was fatally shot by his seven-year-old son, when the boy accidentally discharged the contents of a shotgun into his father's side as the latter was putting a team away in the barn behind his home.

MRS. STILLMAN IS DENIED FUND FOR DEFENCE

Additional Cash Given Her by Judge Is Disallowed by Higher Court

New York, Jan. 28.—Under a unanimous ruling of the appellate division of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman has been denied additional funds for her defence.

The appellate division reversed the decision of Supreme Court Justice Morschauser at White Plains, which awarded Mrs. Stillman $7,500 more for the defence in the divorce suit of her husband, James A. Stillman. Counsel for Mr. Stillman contended that the funds already allowed Mrs. Stillman were sufficient.

The opinion was written by Justice Rich. After reciting some of the incidents of the divorce suit, the opinion concludes:

"While it appears that the expenditures have exceeded the allowances for expense, it is not made to appear that the defendant has not in hand sufficient funds with which to meet these expenses and the order of the learned court at special term must be reversed for this reason.

"There is another reason why the order cannot be sustained. It appears from the affidavit, upon which it is based that defendant's present requirements for expenses amount to at least $2,000. The sum allowed was $7,500. The learned court must have intended by Line was "brother-in-law." In the code in which the July 6 letter was cloaked, Dickson was known as "Durel," for her adds, decoded.

"This supporter of Gonzalez was here Friday and had a conference with Thomas F. Lee and Bryan for a conference today, Wednesday, with Senor Fuentes, Secretary Fall and Under Secretary of State Fletcher."

13 ARRESTED IN RAID ON BACK BAY POOL ROOM

A pool table and a considerable quantity of cues, racks and balls were seized by a raiding squad from the Back Bay station when the officers descended on a poolroom at No. 214 Massachusetts avenue and arrested four men on charges of gaming. The poolroom was conducted by Willard Bennett of No. 37 Belvidere street. Nine other persons were arrested for being present at a game of chance.

3 HOLD UP MAN AND SEARCH FOR WHISKEY

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 28.—"Where do you keep your whiskey?" George McGonagle, reading the evening paper in his home, No. 23 Jefferson avenue, looked up at the questioner to find himself facing a revolver held firmly by a determined looking individual who adjusted the inquiry. When told by McGonagle that there was no whiskey on the premises, the intruder backed him into a closet and, upon being joined by two other men, descended to the cellar where a careful search was made. Finding no trace of liquor the men left. McGonagle then telephoned the police.

ATTLEBORO WOMAN DIES ON SIDEWALK

Attleboro, Jan. 28.—Mrs. John H. Donaldner was found dead on the sidewalk in front of her residence, No. 123 Pine street, by her husband. She left home on an errand. She was born in Canada sixty-nine years ago and lived here seventeen years. Besides her husband four daughters and three sons survive.

HEROIC MOTHER SAVES CHILD AND HOME

Locked in Attic After Putting Out Fire, Waltham Woman Escapes by Window

If Douglas Fairbanks or Larry Semon are looking for a leading lady to match their acrobatic stunts they should apply to Mrs. Hubert A. Doucette of No. 43 Pine street, Waltham.

Mrs. Doucette's experience in saving her home from burning down and saving her own and her small son's life by escaping from a locked attic and sliding down a telephone wire would make a thrilling movie with Douglas left out.

Four-year-old Hubert, Jr., was sent into the attic to play, and he succeeded in setting fire to a mattress. His screams attracted his mother, who ran to the rescue. She beat out the flames, but the mattress still smouldered. Hubert, Jr. disappeared.

The frantic woman tried to get out of the attic, but the door had swung shut and there was no knob on the inside. Throwing up the window she leaped to the roof. Crawling on hands and knees over the icy roof she reached the telephone wire.

Taking off her felt slippers to protect her hands she slid to the ground, where she was met by a man climbed in and telephoned to the firemen.

Then she hunted Hubert, Junior, and finally located him hiding in a closet. The firemen came and took the mattress, still smouldering, into the yard.

Question—Did Mrs. Doucette then faint in the arms of the chief of the fire department?

Answer—She did not. She put Hubert, Junior, to bed and made a batch of doughnuts.

SUBMARINE T-2 IN PORT AFTER BREAKDOWN

Rudder Disabled While on Cruise From Newport to Hampton Roads

By Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Jan. 28.—The submarine T-2, which reported by wireless yesterday that she was anchored off Peawick Island lighthouse with a disabled rudder, came into the Delaware breakwater later under her own power. Navy Yard officials said the damage to the undersea craft was not serious and that temporary repairs had been made by the crew.

The submarine was accompanied by the navy tug Arapahoe, which was sent out from Cape May in response to a wireless request for aid.

The T-2 was bound from Newport, R. I., for Hampton Roads. It was said at the Navy Yard she probably would come here for permanent repairs.

Two Young Girls Held

Worcester, Jan. 28.—Hardly out of their teens, Anna Smith and Lawrence Dee, both of Worcester, are in jail in Superior Court charged with having parts in illegal treatment of Loretta Wood, also of Worcester, about twenty years old.

BLACKMAIL SIREN TELLS OF BREAKING AWAY FROM BOSTON BAND

KNEW TOO MUCH, SHE SAYS, TO FEAR GANG'S VENGEANCE

The Boston American today publishes the sixth and final instalment of the confessions of Mrs. Theresa Duggan, Boston Blackmail Vamp.

CHAPTER 6.

While the victim, the other girl and myself were drinking and making merry, the gang's raiding party, like slinking wolves, were waiting outside. Despite her apparent intoxication and the effusive love-making of the victim, the other girl had her wits very much about her.

At the proper moment she went to the bedroom, evidently overcome by her libations. The man followed and I trailed along after. We had barely gotten in when there was a commotion outside the apartment, the door suddenly flew open, and the raiders appeared.

GUEST SEEMED PUZZLED.

I registered intense fear, the other girl simulated fright admirably, while our guest appeared to be more puzzled than anything. At least he did not give the appearance of one who was afraid.

The raiders explained of course that they were seeking divorce evidence, and the victim protested that we had been doing nothing wrong. There was talk of settlement, which was ended when the other woman asked if she could not telephone to her attorney.

She was given permission to do so and called one of the legal members of the gang, who appeared at her apartment according to schedule within a remarkably short space of time. His automobile engine must have been running when he received the call.

A DIFFERENT TYPE.

The same old tactics were used, but this man was of a different type and they did not appear to impress him very much. When the lawyer remarked on the seriousness of the situation the victim protested vigorously that there was nothing wrong.

They asked him if they thought a jury could be convinced of the impropriety of our intentions, but he made no reply. At length he was told he could go to his lawyer and make arrangement for a settlement, or stand prosecution.

The man went away without saying much of anything, and the members of the gang present in conference afterwards they believed would be forthcoming. They had placed the figure high, insisting on $50,000, but were perfectly willing to take less.

As it happened, this particular victim, who was a prominent out of town man, had for his counsel a certain public official who had been my undoing. After hearing his client's story the official asked him if he would pay and the man said he would. The next day the official went to the office of one of the lawyer members of the gang, the one who was on friendly counsel for the other girl.

CASE DROPPED.

"I suppose you are going to apply for a warrant for Mr. So and So," said the official.

"Not," replied the lawyer.

"No right," the official replied, "my car is outside. Come on and get a warrant now. I'll take you to——"

They never get a warrant and neither did they get any money. The case was dropped.

In all I keep us from complaining, a small sum was split between us gross. Each came out of the affair who also paid for the liquor we drank. That part was more than a total loss. It was a set-back.

Some time later this same girl and I met two men, one of whom I had previously known. His friend was introduced to me with the other girl, and as he looked like ready money she arranged a party for the four of us at her apartment. A date was arranged and we left the men. She notified the band and the usual plans were made.

ALL IMBIBED FREELY.

The night designated arrived, but the man I knew and my date his acquaintance, instead his friend arrived at the apartment alone, finding me there with the other girl.

She served a nice dinner, which she had prepared, and then the customary liquid refreshment was produced. We all proceeded to imbibe freely and the party became hilarious. The other girl played her part well, and at the proper time staggered into the other room, where we followed.

Within a very few minutes, as though running on schedule, the gang broke in and we were caught again. The same procedure was gone through, the victim was threatened in the usual way, and at the end was given time to see his attorney. Fortunately for him, however, it was discovered that he had no money, and he was dropped. Had he been wealthy, he would have been made to pay.

This was the last shakedown in which I took part. I moved to another apartment and the gang continued to pursue me, but I refused to go through for them. Knowing what I did, I realized that I need fear them no longer.

I had plenty of money, entertained frequently and was entertained by very nice people. My husband took this time to attempt to effect a reconciliation, but his methods were crude, to say the least. Finally he got into the habit of bringing his friends to my home and ridiculing me in their presence. On one of these occasions we had words, and complaints were made by neighbors which forced me to seek another place to live.

GRANTED A DIVORCE.

In a suburb of Boston I secured another apartment and there met my sister, who was with me, was happily married. Both she and her husband continued to make their home with me, and we lived quiet lives for some time.

Once more my husband learned where I was, however, and continued his annoyance. These at length became unbearable and I brought suit for divorce. That was last February, the divorce being granted in September.

The gang had left me alone for some time, and I was beginning to think the worst was over, when in November two mysterious strangers started calling at my home. They refused to state their business, but persisted in trying to find out where I was. Finally they succeeded in finding me and told me they were from the attorney-general's office and wanted information.

MADE A STATEMENT.

I went with them to the attorney-general's office, where my statement was taken down by a stenographer. After hearing his client's story the official asked him if he would sign

BURNING LOVE LETTERS OF DICKERMAN

Jurymen Blush as Epistles Are Read in $100,000 Suit

all day and identified one letter after for the plaintiff, was still reading letters when court adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday. The judge's desk, counsel's table and the floor beneath were covered. And Attorney Gleason declares he isn't half through with reading the missives his client received from young Lieutenant Sonny and after their divorce.

Mrs. Dickerman was in the stand another six minutes during which Attorney Gleason, counsel in her behalf will commence just as soon as all the letters are read.

Next Tuesday or Wednesday, Attorney Eldridge R. Anderson of Boston will launch a counter-love letter attack. He will introduce, it is stated, two bushels of biting love notes, written to his client by Mrs. Dickerman. In several of these, Mrs. Dickerman waxes poetical, it is stated.

The letters of the husband read in court Monday were burning phrases. They speak of "my precious dear," "your sonny boy," "darling mine," "old dear," "my adorable sweetheart," "my own dearest love girl," "kiss you and keep you," "you are my life happiness, Dolly dear"; "I miss your wonderful loving kisses and caressing arms," "Oh, Dolly, my love," "wish you were here to crawl in and hold me in your loving arms."

Striking passages from some of the letters, include the following:

"Oh! rapture, joy and bliss! I received four letters from you, darling, just now and I have never been so happy. You are quite true when you say we live in a world of too many conventionalities, and I, too, am bored with it all.

"You know there isn't any girl in the world I care for but you, darling, and I can't live with you, darling, I will be a bachelor."

MISED SWEET, HOT KISSES."

"I have already made up my mind as to the future, and we can go through all these things together, dear, can't we dearest one? If I can't have partnership with you, it will be a lone or rounder's life for me.

"I am yours and you are mine, and you are going to remain mine, aren't you, dear heart" My old darling!

"A woman ever appealed to me as much as you, dearest, and I am simply mad in love with you, dear, and when you and need you most awfully.

"But if anything happens to you, dear, why then I'll just simply go to Hell. I won't care any more.

"It certainly is pretty hard to be so far away from you, sweetheart, and I think of you every minute. And at night how I do miss you dear, and wish you were in my arms and caressing me with your sweet, hot kisses. Oh! how it is Heavenly thing, n'est ce pas, ma cherie?"

Love is not to be held cheaply when one is forty-seven and well beyond the "flapper" stage.

This, in effect, is the philosophy of Mrs. Dickerman, wealthy overseas worker. Their romance reads all the world like a chapter from one of O. Henry's novels. She is middle-aged. Her husband, slight haired and of fair complexion, is twenty-eight years old. He appears even younger.

ATTENDED HER SUNDAY SCHOOL.

This romance, one born of the World War, was the dark-haired, attractive wife in Red Cross work in Paris and in sectors close to the front. In court yesterday she had a war decoration pinned on the coat of her smartly tailored blue velvet suit.

Mr. Dickerman—Robert Elliot Dickerman, now twenty-seven years old, drove a Red Cross ambulance overseas. For a time he was stationed in Milan, Italy, and then transferred to France.

It was in one of the little villages outside of Paris that they finally met. Mrs. Dickerman heard one of the "doughboys" mention something about his "bubble" sickness from Somerville.

Mrs. Dickerman, then Mrs. Edgar M. Young, a widow, made immediate inquiries. She felt sure, young Dickerman whose name she had heard was the one lonely-looked youth, who, in knee pants, attended her Sunday school class years ago.

Sure enough, Dickerman to call upon her. They discovered they were the same two persons grown up years ago. Their acquaintance grew. Friendship ripened into love. Their duties separated them for awhile, but there were always the burning love letters which followed each other. Came young Dickerman's leave. That leave he spent in Paris in the company of his former Sunday school teacher. She declared on the stand yesterday that he had scarred in her as a shock one morning at her apartment.

HER SON, HIS "IT DIDE."

Came the armistice, and eventually their separate homecoming.

Before that, however, the then Mrs. Young's stopping son, a soldier in the A. E. F., had met young Dickerman on the front. They became "buddies," and as "buddies" they came home.

Then came Mrs. Young's and Dickerman's "Fourth of July" marriage in the city clerk's office of Chicago City Hall. They were married on the 4th.

They were happy, supremely so. Because of his duties as a traveling salesman they were separated at intervals. But always the love letters breathed love in every line and laden with crosses as kisses.

And then the situation, which Mrs. Dickerman charges was caused by her mother-in-law. And now is argued in the East Cambridge, Superior Civil Court, but a floor removed from where on Thursday, Clarence W. Lord was acquitted of a charge of murder.

WORCESTER FIRE CAPTAIN IN GOLDEN WEDDING

Worcester, Jan. 28.—Captain James J Lavene of the Worcester fire department is taking a day off today to celebrate with Mrs. Lavene their golden wedding anniversary. Captain Lavene has been a fireman forty five years. They are receiving many congratulations today at their home, No. 1353 Main street.

'Oceans of Love' in Dickerman's Notes to His Former Sunday School Teacher

Following are some of the ardent love letters figuring in Mrs. Eugenie E. Dickerman's $100,000 alienation suit against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Minnie L. Dickerman, now on trial in East Cambridge. Robert Elliot Dickerman, the youthful husband and former Sunday school pupil of his wife, wrote them to her.

"THINK OF YOU MORNING, NOON AND NIGHT"

March 7, 1918.

Dearest Heart:

Another one of your dear letters came yesterday afternoon. It made me want you, oh! so much. I, too, just live on your letters, dear, and try to write every day but usually write in the mornings as the mail goes at 2:00. I miss you awfully and think of you every minute, morning, noon and night and I dream! I was with you again last night after your letter of lonesomeness. The distance does seem great and greater, doesn't it, dearest, and makes me love you more and more each day. Yes dear heart, I think I will be able to get to Paris along in May.

Cheer up, old dear, it may not be long before we shall see each other and then think of what a wonderful time we will have together, n'est ce pas, dear. That Grey certainly is a skunk, but I hope it won't make you go home till I get back to Paris and see you, dear, because it will about kill me if I don't find you there as I love and love and love you dearly, and it will be a terrible separation if I don't find you there when I get back.

Haven't you received the 100 francs yet, dear? I don't understand why not as I sent it by registered mail and have a receipt for it. Now, darling mine, I beg of you to wait until I get back to Paris as it will be terrible for me to get there and not find you as you know how I would feel and can't live without you, as I love you dearly and must have you and if anything happens to you you know what will happen to me.

Goodbye, dearest heart, miss you loads and love you more.

YOUR OWN SONNY BOY.

"COUNTING THE DAYS UNTIL I SEE YOU AGAIN"

March 7, 1918

Dearest Love:

I wrote you this morning, dear, but received another one from you this afternoon, so I will answer it now. You were a darling to write me so late, dear heart, and God only knows how much I enjoy and love them. But really, dear, you must get your sleep as you work so hard every day. Yes, darling, you mean a lot to me, but it anything happens to my precious dear, I won't care any more.

Now that I am yours, I haven't the slightest desire to go with anyone as there is only one, dear, who I care about. Can you guess? Yes, but somehow it is quite becoming to me and would give anything to have you run your fingers through it this very minute, but it will be well trained and long when I see you in Paris, and then I will be in Heaven.

All I think of, dear, is of getting to Paris and you and have you in mind every minute. Please don't feel blue about it, dearest mine, as I told you in this morning's letter that I will undoubtedly see you in a couple of months in Paris and then how happy we shall be together for a while, won't we, darling? You can and will wait for me there, won't you, dearest, as I don't know what I will do if I don't see you before you go back, but I am just praying and hoping you will find something before long.

I was so glad to hear you got my diamond. They are quite plentiful here, so smoke up, old dear, let joy be unconfined. Do take care of that cold of yours. You know I worry about you terribly and when I don't get a letter, one ill as it affects me just as bad. Well, dearest one, there isn't anything more to say, but that I love and miss you early and late, dearest, and am counting the days when I will see you, my darling, with heaps of love and kisses,

YOUR OWN SONNY BOY.

"GREATLY WORRIED ABOUT MY OLD SWEETHEART"

March 15, 1918.

Gene, My Darling:

Today brought me no news from you, though being now four days since I have heard from you, and I have been greatly worried about my old sweetheart, as in your last letter you said you were ill in bed. Oh, I do hope you haven't gone worse with you, darling, and I just pray for a word from you tomorrow, or I don't know what I shall do. I am beginning to fear that my dearest one is quite ill—please tell me to the contrary, dear heart.

With loads and loads of love, your own, SONNY BOY.

"MADE ME FEEL LIKE SLAPPING YOUR WRIST"

With the A. E. F.

April 12, 1918.

My Darling Old Sweetheart:

Yesterday brought me a nice letter from you, dear heart, which pleased me so much. I was very busy all day yesterday, so didn't have time to write you, dear. I am so glad you liked my long letter from Varese and I should tell you the same thing in every letter but it would get tiresome after a while. Anyway, you know it all the time, don't you, dearest mine? I am sorry I mentioned about another man, but you did the same thing to me in a past letter, which made me feel like slapping your wrist likewise. However, I am so glad there isn't any other, as I dont' know what I would do if you ever leave me, as I love you just heaps and want you so much. I can't tell you how much in a letter. Golly! dear heart, I am glad you didn't go with Miss Mullen to church—it would have just about killed me if something terrible had happened to you, dear. There seems to be a reward in virtue and word, n'est ce pas.

We played craps again and I won 750 lire by 1 o'clock, when we quit. 1,100 lire in two days. Not so bad, n'est ce pas.

Good-bye, my adorable sweetheart, with just heaps of love.

Your own SONNY BOY.

"YOU BET YOUR SONNY BOY IS THINKING GOOD THINGS"

Milan, Feb. 1, 1918.

My Darling Heart—

Your dear second letter and postal arrived today and oh! joy and rapture, how happy they made me. Oh! sweetheart, you can't imagine how much I have missed you, too, more so than you have missed me. I'll tell when I get to dreaming. I'll think of you at my side every minute. It makes me feel mighty unhappy, too, thinking of you way up in Paris, but I'll be back before August, dear one, probably the middle of June.

But I think of you every minute, dear, and please don't mention it again that you will ever be forgotten as I thought you told me you believed me in what I told you before I left. Hope, my dear, you will not work too hard, and now that I have left you well, get in a good rest as you promised me, because you really need it and will feel worlds better if you do and you really need it.

I received six letters today myself and simply tore yours to pieces to get at it and read it over many times and then again at dinner. You bet your sonny boy is thinking good things of you and know you will be good to me and you can well believe I will faithfully do right by you also.

We certainly will have to visit the Latin Quarter again when I return. I read by the paper today they raided Paris last night and killed several. Gee! I hope you are all right, because if anything happens to you, it will kill me. You really don't know yet dear how much I really love you sweetheart. Today I have felt more blue and homesick, no not exactly that but Paris-sick and so lonesome, just the way I did the night I first met you and an aunt of one of the fellows with us, a dear old lady like yourself (only she is really old). She took us to a cafe where we met her husband and had a very good Bronx which I drank to your health, seeing you in the bottom of the glass.

Oh! how I wish you were with me, darling. This separation from you is simply hell and I miss you no end. After this war, nothing will ever get me away from you.

With heaps of love,

SONNY BOY.

"JUST ABOUT KILLS ME TO HAVE YOU ILL"

March 14, 1918.

Dearest One:

Three days have passed now since I have received a letter from you and your silence, too, has made me worry greatly. As you told me in your last letter you were ill in bed with three casualties it has made me worry all the more for fear they may have turned worse, but oh! I hope not, dearest one. It just about kills me to have you ill when I am so far away and can't see you and help you in whatever little way I might be able to.

I am just praying for a letter from my sweetheart this afternoon telling me she is all well again and your spirits as I miss and love her oh! so much and simply must hear that she is always well. I have played poker every night, winning at least 500 lire last night and 800 the past three nights, so I am now about 200 ahead. I sort of came back, n'est ce pas.

With just heaps of love and kisses,

YOUR OWN.

WROTE THAT FEMALES DID NOT BOTHER HIM

"Milan, Jan. 30, 1918.

"My Dearest One:

"Your dear letter of the 25th arrived this afternoon and I was missed you, and I think of you can't imagine how much so. It made me feel much nearer to you, dear, and I just simply must have a chat with you before I go to dinner. You can't imagine, sweetheart, how much I have missed you, and I think of you every minute.

"I simply read and reread your letter and then some. This is a fine town, having many fine stores with very good window displays, and restaurants, but I haven't seen a good-looking female since I have landed in the country—ce ne faut rien—they don't bother me any way.

"Loving you heaps, I remain,

"Always your Bobbie (Ill vous voulez?)"

"I WANT YOU AND NEED YOU JUST AWFULLY"

"Varese, March 29, 1918.

"My Dearest Sweetheart:

"I did not write you yesterday as there wasn't a thing to tell you except that I always love you and think of you, which you know. Oh! rapture, joy and bliss. I received four letters from you, darling, just now, and I have never been so happy since I left you.

"My dearest one, speaking of my future, I thought we had that all out before I left Paris. You are quite true when you say we live in a world of too many conventionalities, and I, too, am bored with it all. You know there isn't any girl in the world I care for but you, darling, and if I can't live with you, I will be a bachelor.

"I have already made up my mind as to the future, and we can go all through these things together, dear, can't we, dearest one? If I can't have partnership with you, it will be a lone or a rounder's life for me, dearest one, for I will never marry. I've been up in Paris, but I'll be back before August, dear one, probably the middle of June.

"Don't you think we can arrange some way at least in a few years after I get started, and have a little money. I certainly do wish we could love as novelists write about. Anyway, my precious dear, let us hope for the best, and now you know my whole story and final decision. It is you and your love with mine together, or alone.

"No woman ever appealed to me as much as you, dearest, and I am simply mad in love with you, dear, and want you, and need you just awfully. I couldn't love another again, if I wanted to and I don't, that's all. I am yours, and you are mine, and you are going to remain mine, aren't you, dear heart? So that is settled. Amen.

"Now I, too, will say, as you, that I simply adore you, and want to see you so bad, and feel your comforting, loving arms around me, as I am so lonely for you, dear heart, and I think of you every moment of the day. My old darling, I am dreadfully sorry that in one of my letters I made you very unhappy, for that is the very last thing I should want to do.

"I know you don't mind the drinking, and I don't have to pay for it, as they have barrels of it out there for the party with the curators, and it was what was left over. Don't worry, dear, I will not drink too much.

"With heaps and heaps of love, "BOBBIE."

MORE "OCEANS OF LOVE TO THE DEAREST GIRL"

August 5, 1919

Gene, Dearest Love—Well, your little boy did not recover till yesterday, and yesterday and today I have felt like a king, and like my real self again. I sure was a sick and low woman sick there for a while, and oh! how I missed and wanted my darling sweetheart. Guess I was a bit nasty and needed you, dear heart, with all your wonderful love and charm. As time goes on it is getting pretty hard and at times I get passionate something terrible, thinking of you, and I want you so bad I could just cry for you, dear.

However, it will not be long before I shall have you, darling, and I can wait forever if I have my love, and you can trust and believe in me on that score, sweetie.

How is my darling sweetheart? Well and healthy I hope and pray, with the exception of being lonesome and wanting her little hubby. God bless you, dear love. With oceans of love and kisses, to the dearest and sweetest and most loving girl in the world.

Your loving and adoring hubby, BOBBY.

PRINCIPALS IN LOVE SUIT TALE OF "10 WONDERFUL NIGHTS" IN PARIS

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT E. DICKERMAN

Mrs. Dickerman, who is forty-seven years old, is suing the mother of her twenty-seven-year-old husband for $100,000, claiming alienation of affections. She was his Sunday school teacher in Somerville and tells of his ardent courtship when both were overseas during the World War and in particular of "ten wonderful nights" together in Paris.

SAYS SHANTUNG ISSUE IS GOOD AS SETTLED

Dr. Wang Expects Delegates to Reach Formal Agreement Monday

By Universal Service.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The troublesome Shantung issue is as "good as settled right now," Dr. Wang, head of the Chinese delegation, officially announced. The delegation in all probability will come to a formal agreement at the meeting between the Chinese and Japanese representatives on Monday, he said.

Negotiations looking to the return of Shantung to China have all along hinged upon disposition of the Kiaochow-Tsinanfu Railroad. Under the agreement as now worked out, the managing director and the traffic manager will be Chinese nationals. The traffic manager, however, probably will have a Japanese associate for assistant.

The Chinese are given fifteen years to pay for the road, with an option of paying in full at the end of five years. This probably will be done, according to Dr. Wang, as various Chinese commercial organizations are already raising the money. The price, 30,000,000 gold marks, plus reimbursements for betterments made by the Japanese since they acquired control, was set by the reparations commission.

Dr. Wang expressed the belief that the settlement will be well received by the Chinese people, who have been greatly stirred up over the Shantung issue. The agreement, he indicated, was authorized by Dr. W. W. Yen, the new Chinese Premier, in whom the people are said to have much confidence.

The Chinese people will be notified of the terms of the settlement by the various student and commercial bodies informally represented at the arms conference. The plan will be worked out at a meeting of the delegation tomorrow.

The agreement was characterized by Dr. Wang, in making the announcement, as "not ideal," but he added:

"But in international negotiations the ideal is impossible, and this agreement is the most satisfactory one that could be reached under the present conditions."

President Harding had no part in the settlement, Dr. Wang said. The visit of Dr. Sze, the Chinese minister, to the White House on Wednesday night was merely to explain why the delegation had been so long in reaching a settlement with the Japanese.

Adopt the Direct Treatment

for the Cold Troubles of all the Family

VICKS STANDING OFFER

Vicks doesn't relieve every case. No remedy can possibly do that. But it is successful in such a large percentage of cold troubles that we have had for years this standing offer: Buy either the 35c, 75c or $1.50 size from your druggist. If you are not delighted with the results, mail us the top of the carton, and we will cheerfully refund the purchase price. Or, if you wish to try Vicks before you buy, mail the coupon below for a free sample.

Rub It On for Deep Chest Colds

ABSORBED, like a liniment, and, at the same time, INHALED, as a vapor, Vicks gets immediately into congested, inflamed air passages.

WHEN a cold goes down deep—threatens to turn into bronchitis or pneumonia—with soreness, tight breathing and a heavy hollow cough, apply hot wet cloths over throat and chest to open pores of skin. Then rub Vicks in well until the skin is red. Spread on thickly and cover with hot flannel cloths, and arrange the bedding loosely so that the healing vapors will be inhaled all night.

The penetrative and stimulative effect of Vicks thru the skin helps to relieve tightness and congestion. At the same time, the vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication direct to the lungs and air passages.

Ideal Treatment for Children

Mothers like to use Vicks for children. It avoids dosing and upsetting their stomachs. When the kiddies come in wet and "sniffling" Vicks is applied to prevent colds. It keeps off spasmodic croup. Also, its cooling, soothing qualities make it useful every day for cuts, burns, bruises, stings and itching skin.

A "Tar Heel" Discovery

Twenty-five years ago, Druggist Lunsford Richardson, of Greensboro, North Carolina, the "Tar Heel" State, seeking a better way to treat colds, hit upon a wonderful formula. He combined Camphor, Menthol and certain volatile oils in the form of a salve, so that when applied to throat and chest, it not only penetrated and stimulated like a liniment, but the ingredients were released as vapors by the body heat and inhaled directly into the affected air passages. This remedy, Vicks VapoRub, won instant local favor and its fame has spread, county by county, state by state, until now Vicks is a family standby from coast to coast.

Best of Nature's Remedies

Vicks contains valuable ingredients brought from distant countries—Camphor from Formosa, land of head-hunting savages; Menthol from picturesque Japan; Oil of Eucalyptus from far Australia; Oil of Juniper Tar from Bedouin haunts of Northern Africa; Oil of Thyme from smiling Southern France and Oil of Turpentine from Dixie.

How Vicks Should Be Used

For Spasmodic Croup, Children's Colds—Rub Vicks over the throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. One application at bed time usually prevents a night attack of croup.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever—Vicks should be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little can be applied up the nostrils and snuffed up the head.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Tonsilitis, Bronchitis, Coughs—Vicks should be applied over the throat and chest—if necessary, first using hot, wet cloths to open the pores of the skin—then rubbed in well until the skin is red; spread on thickly and covered with one or two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. If the cough is annoying, swallow small pieces the size of a pea.

Used as a Liniment, Poultice or Plaster—On account of its penetrative and rubefacient effect, Vicks has been used as a poultice for Bites, Boils, Bruises, Frost bite, Muscular Soreness, Poison Ivy, Sunburn, Headache, Neuralgia and Sore Calloused Feet.

VICKS VAPORUB

Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly

The Vick Spoon Test

TRIAL TIN FREE

Send this coupon to the Vick Chemical Company, Greensboro, N. C. A ¼-oz. trial tin of Vicks will be mailed you promptly, sufficient to test the efficacy of its vapors by melting in a spoon, as shown in the illustration to the left.

DRUG ADDICTS ALL SURVIVE 'COLD TURKEY'

Deer Island Doctor Says Suffering Is Great, but They Soon Recover

One out of every six men sent to the Deer Island House of Correction is a drug addict.

Not one "dope" slave has died as a result of "cold turkey" treatment at Deer Island in the past sixteen years.

Dr. Bernard F. McGaffigan, who has been a physician at the Deer Island institution during that time, has examined over 2,000 persons addicted to the use of narcotics.

To a Boston American reporter investigating the appalling drug situation in Boston and New England, Dr. McGaffigan gave some of his experiences to help guide the Legislature in framing laws to curb the fast-growing evil.

45 DRUG ADDICTS.

There are 285 prisoners at Deer Island, and of that number forty-five have been drug users. Some of the drug slaves have been arrested for committing larceny, breaking and entering or some other crime than mere possession or sale of narcotics illegally, while the rest are "in" for violating the drug laws.

And in the conclusions reached by Dr. McGaffigan, the master of Deer Island, George M. Harlow, said he agrees.

"I believe," said Dr. McGaffigan, "that addiction to the use of drugs is a vice, rather than a disease, that if one actually desires to get rid of the habit, one can do so. There will be some terrible suffering for awhile, but that will be temporary. After once getting rid of the habit, it is a person's own fault if he goes back to the stuff again.

"Here at Deer Island we give the drug users what is generally known as 'cold turkey.' They do not receive a particle of narcotic. For the first week or so they suffer terrible agony, their pain seems unbearable.

LIVE THROUGH PAIN.

"They crave the 'dope' and this is actuated to some extent by physical pain. We watch them closely during the first week or so to prevent any complication of the disease, and we give them medicine to clear their constitutions, but they receive no drugs from us.

"Once they have passed the torture of the body, they get what is known as 'chuck horrors.' They have a tremendous appetite and eat enough for three persons. They gain in weight rapidly. Some pack up thirty to fifty pounds.

"We put them to work to take their minds off the drugs, and no one is allowed to loaf. That is not good for anyone to do. Everyone must work well to eat well and sleep well. There must be plenty of exercise.

"COLD TURKEY" IS THE RULE.

"It might be well in some cases to gradually reduce the ration of drugs. That would depend upon the mental ability of the addict. Such a treatment is given at Long Island. But at Deer Island 'cold turkey' is the rule.

"Now I should guess that ninety-nine out of every hundred persons cured of the drug habit return to it later. They do not have the will power to resist the temptation. That is why I advocate sentences of not less than three months for drug addicts. The sentence should be long enough to allow the dope to get cured and regain confidence in himself to withstand the temptation to return to drugs, after leaving prison."

Mr. Harlow strongly recommended long sentences for drug addicts, and as for "dope" pedlars, the persons who get rich at the expense of their unfortunate victims, he said a minimum term of one year was "mild."

WORSE THAN MURDERER.

"The offence dope pedlars commit against society," he said, "is graver than many persons realize. They wreck thousands of men and women physically, financially, morally and otherwise and they make criminals out of them. A dope pedlar ranks next to a murderer, and in some ways he is worse than a murderer.

"We have 285 inmates at Deer Island and of that number forty-five have used drugs. Many of them were driven to crime to obtain funds to buy 'junk.'

"I believe jail is the proper place for a drug user. Of course they must be watched closely—more closely than other prisoners. It is very difficult to prevent smuggling of 'dope' into Deer Island. Quite frequently we catch prisoners with drugs on them and then we bring them to court and prosecute them for violating the drug laws.

VISITORS WATCHED.

"The stuff is passed in by outside workmen, visitors have to be watched and all packages sent in by friends must be examined for drugs.

"The Boston American's bill to increase punishment for 'dope' pedlars is a good one, especially the provision for minimum sentences and elimination of all fines."

Two inmates at Deer Island were interviewed by the Boston American investigator, one of them had broken the habit and the other had taken his last "shot" a week before.

They both agreed that "cold turkey" was a hard method, but they were agreed it worked the cure. One of the prisoners had taken his last morphine and cocaine several years ago, he said, and he attributed his addiction to bad company.

Fresh From Paris

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

PARIS, France.

A SILHOUETTE that is bouffant and one that is slender are equally appealing and equally of the mode. Paris takes opportunities like the charming afternoon frock sketched at the left, by Drecoll, to tell us that taffeta will be worn for the Spring—which, since things like this can come out of taffeta, is a delightful forecast. The tight little bodice has its neckline, that is partly rich and partly low, and its sleeves, that are neither long nor short, frilled with cream Valenciennes. The bouffant skirt—for a taffeta skirt, of course, would be bouffant—is attached with cartridge pleats, and draped about midway down with rows of Valenciennes—back this time—and full standing-out ruffle of black velvet. A narrow velvet ribbon girdle ties at the front in a wee bow with long ends.

ONE of the slender ideas that has been appearing in the smartest French evening gowns right along is evident in the model from Drecoll, at the right. It requires only a single piece of material—king's blue crepe marocain in this instance, which is wrapped about one and lapped over and drops in a point at the front of the skirt. A gold chain belt indicates a natural waist-line in a demure way.

SEEK MILLION FOR CARUSO FUND

Money to Be Used to Give Musical Education to Worthy

A fund of one million dollars will be sought, beginning on February 27, to establish the Caruso American Memorial Foundation, designed as a memento to the late Enrico Caruso, world-famous tenor, who died last Summer.

Those in charge of the movement, including a number of the most distinguished musicians in the world, announce that interest from the fund will be used annually to give a musical education to promising and deserving students, regardless of race, creed or sex.

On the day that the drive is opened it is planned to have a number of special memorial concerts. Leading artists of this country and Europe, including John McCormack, Reinald Werrenrath, Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Geraldine Farrar and many others, have agreed to assist at these performances.

Among organizations which have pledged their aid are the Victor Talking Machine Company, the Metropolitan Opera Company and the Music Industries' Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Governor Channing Cox has agreed to serve as honorary chairman of the Massachusetts State committee.

Lawrence Is Hit Hard by Outbreaks of Grip and Measles

Lawrence, Jan. 28.—Health officials are alarmed over an outbreak of measles in the Ward Five section here. Several rooms have been closed in the Bodwell School, and the health directors have appealed for public co-operation in an attempt to stop the outbreak. Hundreds of people are ill with the grip, many of them in a serious condition. At least twenty-five operators at the telephone exchange are among those ill and as a result telephone service is handicapped.

SEIZES VALISE WITH $1,000 IN CASH

South Station Officer Acts With Speed After Overhearing Complaint of Theft

Special Officer McElaney overheard a man at the South Station complaining about the theft of his valise and suitcase. His accidental "listening in" resulted a short time later in the arrest on a larceny charge of William Wilmesky of Providence.

The valise, officers said, contained $1,000 in cash and valuable papers. Both pieces of baggage were said to have been in his possession at the time of his arrest.

McElaney, overhearing the conversation in the depot, recalled that he had a moment before seen a man hurrying down Dorchester avenue from the station with two suitcases answering the description of the stolen ones. He called Special Officers Stoddard and Tracey and the three, commandeering a cab, sped down the avenue in search of the men whom they found and arrested near the Dorchester avenue bridge.

Haverhill Merchant Beats Off Robber With Hammer

Haverhill, Jan. 28.—Joseph Lavine, produce dealer, reported to the police that as he was driving his team up Salem street, near South Groveland, a young man jumped on the sleigh, demanded a ride and then grabbed a canvas bag containing twelve dollars in change which was in one of his pockets. Lavine says he told the man that he had more money in another pocket and when the robber reached for it he grabbed a hammer and hit him over the head and on the arm, hurling him into the roadway. Lavine says he whipped up the horse and left the robber cursing in the snow. He said he had $126 in his other pocket.

HIGH PRESSURE SYSTEM CUTS INSURANCE RATE

Establishment in Boston of the new high pressure system in the fire department has resulted in a drop in fire insurance rates on property that is protected by that system, according to announcement by the rating committee of the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters.

When this system is fully completed the underwriters will allow a reduction of 50 per cent. of the present excessive charges on risks having the benefit of its protection. Two-thirds of this proposed total allowance is now made, effective as of the first of this year, while the 15 per cent. conflagration charge on buildings of ordinary construction in the congested district has been removed.

Rheumatism Left Him As If By Magic!

Had Suffered Over 50 Years! Now 83 Years, Yet a Big Surprise To Friends

Regains Strength Goes Out Fishing Back to Business Laughs at "URIC ACID"

How the "Inner Mysteries" Reveals Startling Facts Overlooked By Doctors and Scientists For Centuries

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army over fifty years ago." writes J. B. Ashelman. "Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called cures, and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until I could almost recite it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain, my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now, as if by magic, I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change."

HOW IT HAPPENED

Mr. Ashelman is only one of thousands who suffered for years, owing to the general belief in the old, false theory that "Uric Acid" causes rheumatism. This erroneous belief induced him and legions of unfortunate men and women to take wrong treatments. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try and get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints, by taking medicines supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. Many physicians and scientists now know that Uric Acid never did, never can and never will cause rheumatism, that it is a natural and necessary constituent of the blood; that it is found in every man's born habit and that without it we could not live.

These statements may seem strange to some folks, who have all along been led to believe in the old "Uric Acid" humbug. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out this truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries," a remarkable book now being distributed free by authority who devoted over 30 years to the scientific study of this particular trouble.

NOTE: If any reader of the American wishes the book that reveals these facts regarding the true cause and cure of rheumatism, facts that were overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past, simply send a post card or letter to H. P. Clearwater, Ph. 426-D Street, Hallowell, Maine, and it will be sent by return mail without any charge whatever. Cut out this notice lest you forget. If not a sufferer yourself hand this good news to some afflicted friend.

G. R. WHITE DEAD, WAS BIGGEST TAXPAYER

End Comes Suddenly in His Commonwealth Ave. Home; Was Worth $6,000,000

George R. White, heaviest individual taxpayer in Boston, died suddenly at his home, No. 285 Commonwealth avenue. He was seventy-four years old.

Mr. White's wealth was valued at more than $6,000,000. He won his way from a job as "paste boy" in an advertising agency to a place as one of Boston's first citizens.

He was president of the Potter Drug & Chemical Company, director of the First National Bank, trustee of the Museum of Fine Arts, donor of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, member of several Boston clubs and dealt extensively in real estate.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Frederick T. Bradbury. The funeral will take place Monday and interment will be in Forest Hill Cemetery.

FITZGERALD PLEADS FOR NEW ENGLAND BOOM

New England must rid itself of its time-honored provincialism if it is to keep abreast of the times, declared former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald in a speech before the Winchendon Board of Trade. "For altogether too long we have been smug and contented," Fitzgerald asserted. "We must get out of our isolation. Education is more what you get in contact with people than what you get in school and college."

The former Mayor referred to the Irish settlement as "one of the happiest events for centuries," and urged his hearers to "take pattern from Michael Collins and Sir James Craig, and work with our faces toward the rising, not the setting, sun."

WILLIAM GILLETTE COMING TO THE HOLLIS THEATRE

William Gillette comes to the Hollis Street Theatre next week in "The Dream Maker." That will be good news for most theatre goers who look upon Mr. Gillette as one of the foremost actors in America. And maybe they are right. Certainly there are mighty few actors on the stage today it is more interesting to watch than him.

Especially when he is playing a part he has written for himself. The last time he was in Boston he played the dissipated, hopeless artist, who has missed his big chance in life in Sir James M. Barrie's "Dear Brutus." It was a fine part, and Mr. Gillette gave a wonderful performance in it—a performance almost everyone who saw will remember. But even a wizard like Barrie can't fit Mr. Gillette with a part as well as he can do it for himself. Witness his "Sherlock Holmes." Of course, Conan Doyle created Holmes, but Gillette made him a real thing. Think of Holmes, and one is bound to think of the Holmes Gillette impersonated.

Well, in "The Dream Maker" he has written another part for himself. A New York newspaper man—name of Howard E. Morton—conceived the idea of "The Dream Maker," showing how, if you go about it the right way, you can make a person believe just about whatever you want them to believe. Gillette took this idea and mixed it with the old adage, "Set a thief to catch a thief" and wrote a play, taking care to make the central character just the sort of character he himself knows how to impersonate a little better than any other living actor.

First Act of "Back Pay," Not Second, End of Vice

"Back Pay," which is on view as a spoken drama at the Selwyn, is a rather clever example of a type of drama which has come into existence in this country fairly recently, but which has always played a prominent part in the European theatre.

There seems to be a prurient curiosity to know what goes on inside the head of the woman who sells her flesh for gold. Is she thoroughly bad? Has she decent instincts? Has she any generous or noble ideas? Would she reform if she were able to do so? Is she entirely to blame? Has she any right to marriage after leading a life of shame?

The vast army of respectable girls and women, the girls who struggle for an honest living in the shops and stores, the married women who drudge in dingy homes for surly husbands, all seem to be asking these questions more than they ever did before.

"Back Pay," despite its lurid picture of prosperous immorality, preaches old fashioned ethics. The heroine of this drama weighs all her finery against the memory of an honest love and abandons her gilded life to go back to work in a store. Miss MacKellar, the star of the play, tells me that most of the women she meets and discuss the play with her say the heroine was a fool to give up her Russian sables.

The trouble with all these dramas of sinful women is that they never deal with gilded vice. The women in "Back Pay" are successful courtesans. And success in that profession is no difficult as in any other. Discontented women who admire such stage pictures as the second act of "Back Pay" should realize that for the vast majority of those who take the prurient path it turns out to lead into the horrid sordid setting of the first act, from which Hester escapes.

Fred Stone Believes in Playing for the Kids

Fred Stone knows why he is so popular and why the Fred Stone show is out so frequently at the Colonial.

"Plan a style of entertainment that will appeal to everybody. There are more children in the world than anybody else. Plan to please them with out driving away the grown-ups. I never handicap myself by placing a limit on my audience. I try to make my show I offer."

"Beyond that I try to have something new in each succeeding production. There is no more reason why the theatre should have second stuff than there is for a merchant to try to unload shopworn merchandise. Every time I have started to introducee a new assortment of tricks, comedy stunts and specialty thrills into my productions, and in order to get things really at it's working with them as soon as I get set in my current show. There's mighty little you can't do if you try hard enough."

Bee Ho a Real Yip, Yip Cowboy

This astonishing rope performer in "Red Pepper," known as Bee Ho Gray, has a record as long as your arm of championships won all through the West for mastery of the lasso. And he has learned to talk while he works until he is almost as funny as Will Rogers.

Bee Ho was born in Chickas, Oklahoma, and he worked as a cowboy until 1903, when they began feeding the punches in that State and the occupation of a cow youth became less attractive. Accordingly he got a job in a show called "The Cow Puncher," written by the late Hal Reid. In 1906 he joined Colonel Cummings' Indian Congress, which was one of the attractions at the St. Louis Fair in that year. For the next ten years Bee Ho traveled around with Buffalo Bill and with Pawnee Bill's Wild West Show, and then he broke into vaudeville. His latest achievement was winning the roping championship at Cheyenne in 1921.

Edith Shayne Tells What a Great Life Is Acting

Edith Shayne, who plays the wife of the philandering millionaire in "Dear Love," thinks an actor's life is the greatest life of all.

"He has what no other artist obtains—the immediate and direct applause of those whom it is his aim to please. Thousands of eyes are focused upon him, illuminated by a special system of lighting. He knows the delights of the poets and of the artists, also the gymnast and the dancer. That is, of course, if he is successful. But the unsuccessful man in any walk of life is unhappy, and as is the unsuccessful actor.

"The drawback of the acting profession used to be that he leaves nothing tangible behind him by which the measure of his talent can be rightly gauged by posterity. But today the cinema and the photograph are fast remedying that drawback."

"That's all right for the actor. How about the actress?"

"She has the same privileges as the actor," said Miss Shayne, laughing, "and if she is unsuccessful and discovers it in time she can usually marry a millionaire and wear Russian sables."

Mabel Withee Shocked to See Name in Electric Lights

Mabel Withee, who is the headliner at the Majestic next week, just breezed out of Grand Rapids into Electric lights on Broadway in a most amazing fashion. Which proves that a girl always doesn't have to slave for years on the bottom rungs of the theatrical ladder before winning success. Through an accidental meeting with a theatrical manager she learned that the Shuberts were looking for a girl who could really sing to play opposite Al Jolson in "Robinson Crusoe, Jr." She went to the darkened theatre and was given a tryout. She thought she had never sung so badly in her life. And then from the darkness the voice of J. J. Shubert called out: "Will you take off that big hat so that we can see what you look like?"

She got the engagement. The next season she was engaged for "Sinbad" with Jolson. When she approached the Winter Garden they were putting up the letters for a new electric sign. She read "Sinbad," Al Jolson, and then some letters which slowly spelled "Mabel Withee." They say she fainted in the street and a taxi rob nearly ran over her. She gave it more excuse than did Ethel Barrymore in "Declasse."

Grandpa Harrold Goes to See Patti in "Irene"

Miss Patti Harrold, the leading woman of "Irene," will be the guest and hostess to her grandfather during the past week. Old Mr. Harrold came all the way from Muncie, Indiana, to visit his distinguished son at the Metropolitan Opera in New York, and then to visit that son's distinguished daughter at the Shubert in Boston.

Miss Harrold's grandfather confesses to sixty-nine years old and doesn't look his age. He says he has been having the time of his life and thinks that New York and Boston are the thriving villages and way up to date metropolises that Muncie, Indiana, but probably not in his span of life.

I attended a dress rehearsal of 'Snow Maiden,' the Russian opera on which they are now busy at work at the Metropolitan. Struck me the boy is singing very well indeed, and the new I've come to see how this baby here," patting Patti's cheek, "gets away with such a difficult part. He must have been a lot of musical talent in me I never suspected. I'm telling Patti that if she ought to go into the show business myself and then my children had better look to their laurels."

Congress of Actors Who Play 'Orphans of the Storm'

No better criterion of the character of the D. W. Griffith production can be made than the fact that three very prominent performers who have been in the city and vicinity for a week are appearing on the screen in "Orphans of the Storm."

In "The Wandering Jew," Sydney Herbert won warm applause for his work as the mad monk. He has a fine act. He plays Robespierre in the Griffith picture. Next to Helen Mackellar, Lucille Webster Gleason is the colored maid has been praised in "Back Pay" and "Lilliom," but don't forget her Mother Frochard in "Orphans." And next week will come Theodore Hollingsworth in the principal role in "Lilliom," and it is Schildkraut who plays the Chevalier in "Orphans of the Storm." And to these two Gish sisters, and Monte Blue, and you have an array of dramatic talent in one photoplay which must have made the Griffith weekly payroll loom up like the Germans war indemnity. Yes, the difference that Griffith paid his indemnity.

'Que Shows Getting to Be Very Spectacular

Time was when a burlesque show consisted of two or three tramp comedians, sixteen girls in cotton tights and some second-hand scenery. Now they vie with the first-class houses in making big scenic productions. In Jean Bedini's "Cuddle Up," which plays Waldron's next week, they have a mechanical feature entitled "Niagara in Action," which is said to rival anything done on any stage.

Hallie in Marble Now in Paris Salon

They are calling Hallie Deane of the Girls De Looks company, which plays at the Gayety next week, "June," since her statue, which was made in a Greenwich Village studio by Rupier, the French sculptor, has been on exhibition in the Grand Salon of Paris. Miss Deane's remarkable figure is said to an exquisite grace and dignity as to be worthy of the title of "Queen of Olympus." She were queens it around in Barney Gerard's De Looks show.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

"Adam and Eva," which is to play at the St. James Theatre this coming week is a comedy of American home life in social circles.

Messrs. Guy Bolton and George Middleton, the authors, while writing a thoroughly amusing comedy, have put into the play a great deal of thinking; and as a result the play, while still a comedy, has a serious moral beneath the coat of frivolity.

MARY, IRENE AND SALLY, HERE

The biggest hit in vaudeville this season will be the headline feature of Shubert vaudeville the coming week at the Majestic Theatre beginning Monday next. This will be the presentation by Messrs. Lee and J. J. Shubert of that sweetest of musical romances, "Mary, Irene, and Sally," by Eddie Dowling, with Mabel Withee and company. Mabel Withee is well recognized as a charming little star of musical comedy. It is a dandy little story of the boy who was left behind—somewhat the reverse English on the old idea. Miss Withee plays "Mary," Catherine Mulqueen is the ever popular "Irene," and Helen O'Shea plays "Sally." Eddie Dowling, the author of the little play, will be the "boy." It is presented elaborately in five acts and scenes.

Another headliner will be Eddie Dowling, one of the most popular of monologists in vaudeville and musical comedy. He is known in Vaudeville as the "International Comedian" and he returns to the two-a-day in Shubert Vaudeville after a very successful season in the Ziegfeld Follies where he was one of the beacon lights.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS

There is no farce written in recent years that possesses such laugh provoking situations as those contained in Margaret Mayo's and Salisbury Field's "Twin Beds," announced as the attraction for the coming week by the Somerville Players. The reputation of this laugh feast is well known to all familiar with the theatre. "Twin Beds" is indeed quite remarkable in the manner in which it draws genuine and wholesome laughter with never a suspicion of salacious wit. The story of "Twin Beds" concerns two married couples, Blanche and Harry Hawkins and Signor and Signora Monti.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH

Because a woman, guilty of a capital crime, was superstitious—to the extent that she feared her mirror foreshadowed doom for her—she was finally forced to confess at the eleventh hour and save the life of a man convicted of murder, though innocent.

Such is the central plot of "The Law and the Woman," a new Paramount picture starring Betty Compson, to be seen at Gordon's Old South Theatre on next Monday.

"LILIOM" TO BE SEEN AT WILBUR

On Monday evening, February 6, The Theatre Guild will present the New York cast and production of Franz Molnar's masterpiece, "Liliom," at the Shubert-Wilbur Theatre, with Joseph Schildkraut and Eva La Gallienne in their original roles. This quaint play of realism, which has been one of theoutstanding successes of two New York theatrical seasons, is coming direct to Boston from its Manhattan engagement. The success of "Liliom" as a play has carried with it a personal triumph for Eva La Gallienne as Julie, who has added another new type to her many creations, and who is dividing honors with young Schildkraut, who gives a most interesting portrayal of the Budapest tough, "Liliom."

LOEW'S ORPHEUM

Those who are looking for variety in vaudeville and photoplays will find plenty to satisfy them in the attractive program arranged by Manager Morris of the Loew's Orpheum Theatre for the coming week. The first three days the vaudeville is headlined by "Dance Follies," a clever playlet in which six clever and versatile girls appear in song and dance numbers. Another act that will be enthusiastically welcomed will be Barron and Burt, two of Boston's best, in their newest skit, entitled "Shut Up." The surrounding acts include Renee Noel and Company in "A Friend in Need"; Grace and Eddie Parks, Bender and Deer and others.

FRED McISAAC says

HELEN MacKELLAR in "Back Pay" at the Selwyn has scored a big personal hit in an unusual and audacious drama.

WILLIAM HODGE in "Dog Love" moves on at the end of next week after six weeks of satisfactory business. Plymouth.

FRED STONE in "Tip Top" continues to draw enormous houses with his frivolous but hilarious vehicle. Colonial.

McINTYRE and HEATH in "Red Pepper" at the Wilbur have the merriest musical mixture they have brought to Boston in years.

"IRENE," with Patti Harrold and an excellent cast, closes a prosperous engagement at the Shubert at the end of next week.

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM," the powerful heart and historic drama which D. W. Griffith manufactured from "Two Orphans" and the French Revolution begins the sixth week at the Tremont.

"CONNECTICUT YANKEE AT KING ARTHUR'S COURT," the ingenious dramatization of Mark Twain's fantastic romance, is drawing huge audiences to Tremont Temple.

"TEN NIGHTS IN A BARROOM," the famous old melodrama turned into a motion picture, has drawn the biggest crowds in the history of the Globe during the past week.

BOWDOIN SQ. HAS FILM FEATURE

"Why Girls Leave Home" will be the big picture feature at the Bowdoin Square Theatre beginning Monday, and this offering is one of the most instructive themes ever presented to the public of a topic that has world-wide discussion.

EDWARD HOWARD GRIGGS LECTURES

The current year marks the 600th anniversary of the death of Dante, the great Italian poet, and partly for this reason, and also from the widespread interest, Dr. Edward Howard Griggs has decided to devote his twenty-sixth annual series of lectures in Boston to "The Divine Comedy of Dante."

BIG STARS ON KEITH BILL

An all-star bill of extraordinary attractiveness will be offered at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Itie Sawyer, Hyams and McIntyre, Williams and Wolfus, Armant Brothers, Fenton and Field, and the Six Hassens are among the big names on the list.

GORDON'S SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA

A production which has attracted wider attention than any that has been produced in years, because it is the result of a reunion of three factors which produced the most successful picture ever released, is announced as the attraction that is coming to Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia beginning Monday.

"SHAME" AT PARK NEXT MONDAY

The photoplay program for next week at the Park Theatre will have two contrasty productions of special promise which are to be shown for the first times in Boston. One of these is titled, "Shame," and comes announced as a sensational drama with locale transferring from our western coast to Wintry Alaska. This change of scenery gives opportunities for unusual spectacular effects, and it is said that the director has availed himself fully of these. The story concerns the fears of a young wealthy man that his fiancee is not blood. This fear so preys upon his mind that he flees with his baby to Alaska. It is given out that the shame of revealment will estrange him from his young wife. But she remains loyal and follows in search, and there in the northern country of snows a stirring drama is enacted amid picturesque surroundings. As able company is pictured in the principal roles. The other photoplay will be a swiftly moving comedy, "Watch Your Step," in which Cullen Landis is pictured as leading player.

HOME BEAUTIFUL

The second exhibition to be held in Boston of articles especially applicable to the every day affairs of the home, and of particular interest to the housewife who seeks efficiency as the only method of cutting down hard work, will be opened next April from the 15th to the 25th, when Mechanics Building will be given over to the Second Annual Home Beautiful Exposition.

The exhibition will be under the personal direction of Chester I. Campbell, who has conducted more large and successful exhibitions than any man in the country, and who has made Boston famous for such big shows as the Automobile Show, Textile Exposition, Shoe and Leather Exposition, and others of importance.

TEN NIGHTS AS FILM A HIT

Photodramatic History of Drink Evil Shown in Vivid Form at Globe Theatre

To the Arrow Film Corporation belongs the credit of placing before the motion picture theatre going public, and that means the world, the photodramatization of one of the best-known books ever published, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," which appeared about sixty years ago and has been successfully a novel, stage play, and is now a big motion picture showing at the Globe Theatre.

It appears from what is sometimes printed that there are still a few people who do not go to see motion pictures. This is in face of the fact that two million persons a day in the United States of America visit motion pictures to look at what is shown on the screen and in other countries where theatres are located about the same proportion as this go. This means that probably a majority of the people of the globe near where there are motion picture theatres go and see what is shown there.

Observation shows that the plain people, the common people, in other words, the majority of us, are asked which were the best-known books in the world, would probably name about a dozen, commencing, of course, with the Bible and in the list, according to an experiment that is being made, you will find in a large number of cases "Ten Nights in a Barroom."

Until recently the saloon, like the poor, was always with us, but it is disappearing from large tracts of the globe. It was a disturbing factor in social life. This picture, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," is something alon, the line of a bit of photodramatic history. It shows how unhappiness was spread by what occurred in these places and undue consumption of strong drink.

Clarence in "Yankee" Film Is an Irishman

Playing the part of Clarence, the page, in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," the big Fox photoplay, which is now playing twice daily to capacity houses at the Tremont Temple, is Charles Gordon, born in Ireland and educated at Eton, where he imbibed a love of ancient history that led him later to interest in the things of Arthur's day—costume, heraldry, armor, etc. When he became interested in the movies he made a psychological study of all classes of society by direct contact, going to the parks, the prisons, bars, and living in disguise for a short time in the Tenderloin district of London and in Chinatown, studying the types there. At this time he was also writing articles for the Indian Journal of London.

GAYETY THEATRE

Barney Gerard's "Girls-de-Looks," headed by those two past masters in the art of laugh making, Joseph K. Watson and Colan, will be the big attraction at the Gayety Theatre this week. Watson and Colan, conceded to be comedians of the most natural and funniest exponents of the art of making fun, are the stars that will again be seen as "Slitkin and Slotkin, Bankers and Brokers," the rollicking, fun-provoking two-act musical comedy and quick moving farce that constitutes the book of the "Girls-de-Looks."

The book was written by Barney Gerard, who is responsible for innumerable successes in musical comedy and burlesque the past fifteen years, Joseph K. Watson, co-star of the "Girls-de-Looks," collaborated with Mr. Gerard in framing the book and the numerous specialties that make every funny show which provides almost continuous laughter. The "plot," flimsy as it may be, revolves around the adventures of "Slitkin and Slotkin," formerly in the "rag" business, "years," to win a fortune in the uncertain field of the stock market.

WALDRON'S

"Cuddle Up," a concoction of comedy, music and dancing, staged in Boston by Chester I. Campbell, at Waldron's Casino next week. The burlesque is from the prolific pen of Billy K. Wells, noted producer of many burlesque successes.

Mr. Wells has produced in "Cuddle Up" a revue which takes many original terms, and which possesses numerous features and novelties.

The action shifts rapidly, but smoothly and consistently from a garden scene on Long Island to the Tyrolean Alps, among the snow-capped mountains of Switzerland; then back again to our native heath.

BURTON HOLMES

This coming Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, Burton Holmes announces a novel deviation from his usual procedure in the way of illustration. "Around the World" is to be almost exclusively a motion picture journey—with just a few of his most beautiful colored views, to give a touch of warmth and softness and loveliness and the charm of a restful moment, as a contrast to the vitalizing action of his wealth of original motion pictures.

ARLISS RETURNS

George Arliss in "The Green Goddess" will commence his Boston engagement on Monday, February 6, at the Plymouth Theatre, under the direction of Winthrop Ames. This will be the first presentation of William Archer's already famous play outside of New York, where for two seasons it has been playing to large and well satisfied audiences at the Booth Theatre. Even the intense heat of last Summer, according to report, did not tend to seriously diminish the zeal or enthusiasm for the playhouse was not closed for a single day.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

Miss Hope Hampton, motion picture star whose beauty and genius has brought her fame within two years from the time of her professional debut, is on a vacation trip to the East, and during her sojourn in New England she will make the acquaintance of Boston theatre-goers by appearing in person at Gordon's Olympic Theatre at every performance during this week, beginning Monday in a unique vaudeville offering.

Ivogun to Visit Boston.

Madam Ivogun, the new prima donna of the Chicago Opera Company, who at her recent debut in Chicago proved to be one of the finest dramatic singers of them all, will visit Boston and give a concert in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, February 12, at 3:30.

Madam Ivogun made her New York debut with the Chicago Opera Company in "The Barber of Seville" yesterday with the highest success.

McCormack.

John McCormack, the great Irish tenor, will return to Boston for a second concert on Sunday afternoon, February 19, in Symphony Hall, at 3:30.

A concert having been announced and postponed earlies in the season, all holding tickets for the earlier concert may use the same for this date.

Second Heifetz Concert.

Jascha Heifetz, the young Russian violinist of remarkable powers and most famous of the several famous Auer pupils, will return to Boston for a second concert to be given in Symphony Hall, Sunday afternoon, February 5, at 3:30.

SYMPHONY CONCERT

William Bachaus, who has not been in this country for a number of years, returned to Boston yesterday afternoon to play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto in C minor at the Symphony concert.

It is a curious coincident that just a year ago Mr. Bachaus was playing this same concerto at a concert in Leipsic under Arthur Nikisch, for whom Mr. Monteux played Siegfried's Funeral March from "Gotterdammerung" as a memorial tribute.

The audience applauded Mr. Bachaus to the echo, but it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that certainly in the first movement, if not in all three, there was too much orchestration for the artist to surmount.

It was only by watching his fast-flying hands that one could know that he was playing much of the time. However, when the orchestra, duly subside, the tone of the pianist was powerful and beautiful.

Mr. Monteux opened his program with the Funeral March and followed it by the Beethoven Symphony in A major. This was exceedingly well played—so much so that Mr. Monteux was obliged to call the entire orchestra to its feet in acknowledgment.

The incidental music to "Ramantcho," a play by Pierre Loti, concluded the program. It was the first time that the music of Pierre has been played here. It is the appealing sort with marked rhythm and lots of quaint little old melodies.

GEBHARD RECITAL

Saturday afternoon, February 18, Heinrich Gebhard, Boston's own pianist, will give his first recital in Jordan Hall for several seasons.

This artist of exceptional attainments will present a program of much musical interest.

Mr. Gebhard has only returned this week from a successful concert trip with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, playing in Cleveland, Baltimore, New York and Brooklyn.

LONDON QUARTET

The London String Quartet, which is to appear in Jordan Hall during the entire week commencing with Monday, March 13, will present for the first time in Boston the complete cycle of Beethoven's seventeen string quartets in chronological order.

Monday evening, March 13, at 8:15, Op. 18, No. 1, F Major; Op. 13, No. 2, G Major; Op. 18, No. 3, D Major.

Tuesday evening, March 14, at 8:15, Op. 18, No. 4, C Minor; Op. 18, No. 5, A Major; Op. 18, No. 6, B Flat Major.

SAM BROWN BELT FOR HOSTESSES' SUPERVISOR

Mrs. Louise Fleming, supervisor of hostesses in the First Corps area, will be the first woman in this area entitled to wear with her uniform the Sam Brown belt. When the order came to the headquarters of this area that all commissioned officers were entitled to wear this belt the honor was at the same time extended to hostesses who are part of the army.

The other hostess who will soon wear a belt in this area is Miss Frances Hickok of Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.

Sam Brown belts for women are not ready but special ladies' sizes are being made and will be on hand next week.

Mrs. Fleming has a splendid war record and was overseas with the Yankee Division. Since her return she has been a constant friend and cheer giver to the disabled veterans of the war confined at the different hospitals in this corps area.

Two Concert Artists to Appear in Boston Next Week

COMING TO HUB

Erika Morini, violinist, appearing at Symphony Hall, Tuesday (Photo Copyright by Mishkin, N. Y.) and above, Sophie Braslau, contralto, giving concert at Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon.

Erika Morini, the girl violinist, says that next to a violinist she would like to be a moving picture actress. This marvelous artist, who is to give her second violin recital in Symphony Hall next Tuesday evening, is an ardent "movie fan" and spends every available moment which she can spare from her professional work in the theatres. In addition she is fond of everything else other girls of her age like. She likes dancing and skating, munches chocolate ad libidum and, as said, adores movie queens. Her first appearance in Boston, not long ago, proved that her reputation was not exaggerated. Both critics and audience united in declaring her one of the most remarkable women violinists heard here. Next Tuesday Miss Morini will play Bruch's Concerto in G minor; the "Devil's Trill" by Tartini; Tschaikowsky's "Melodies"; Sarasate's "Romance Andalouse"; Zarzycki's "Mazurka," and will close her program with the "Moses Fantasie," variations on the G string, by Rossini-Paganini. Mr. Emanuel Balaban will again play the accompaniments.

LEGRAND-MIKOVA RECITAL

On Saturday afternoon, February 11, Yvonne LeGrand, soprano, and Marie Mikova, pianist, will give a joint recital at Jordan Hall. Miss Mikova, the young Bohemian pianist, will be remembered by music lovers as giving a recital in aid of the American Military Hospital, No. 1, at Faulkner Farm, Brookline, the home of Mrs. Edward D. Brandegee, on the afternoon of May 5, 1918. At that time she exhibited technical skill, fine taste and quick sensibility for her music—her numbers being for the most part from Chopin and Liszt.

Madame LeGrand's offerings are for the greater part of the French school. She is a graduate of the famous Paris Conservatory, a member of the "Artiste Dramatique Societe of Paris" and the "Foyer du Blesse Militaire." Her voice is lyric coloratura, but with great dramatic intensity. Her success in concert has been as great as that of her success in opera.

KEEPING UP WITH THE TIMES AND BOSTON'S STAGE OFFERINGS

CUDDLE UP, GIRLIE! That's exactly what she is—a cuddly member of the Cuddle Up Company that comes to Waldron's Casino on Monday. In the old days it was easy to tell a burlesque chorine. You can't do it today, 'cause the burlesquers are just as easy to look at as any of 'em.

DEARO! Sybil Fanshee, of the Fanshee Sisters, a dainty charmer with McIntyre and Heath, now gracing the Wilbur Theatre in "Red Pepper." It's as warming and appetizing as its name. The old favorites are in better favor than ever.

YOU CAN'T Keep a Good Girl Down! And as all Boston girls are good, it isn't surprising Ursula O'Hare is now one of the most talented of the musical queens. "Irene," at the Shubert, is better for her presence.

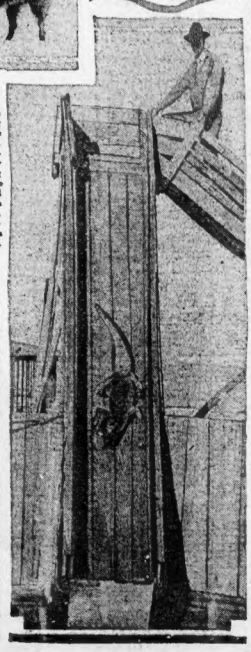
STANDING ROOM ONLY! Don't ever turn crook in China, 'cause they just raise the dance with 'em down there. This chap committed a felony and now he's got to stand in this cage for hours, open to the jibes and jeers of the populace. A poke in the ribs is often included. (Underwood.)

EDITH SHAYNE, who is one of William Hodge's main supports in "Dog Love" at the Plymouth Theatre. Better hurry up if you want to see this captivating piece of drama writing.

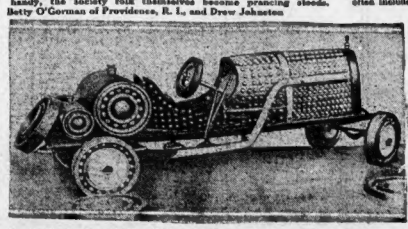
"BACK PAY," or Any Other Kind of Pay Is Acceptable These Days! Here's Helen MacKellar and Elwood Bostwick in the stage play of that name current at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre.

SHE WOULDN'T Have a Chance in the East, Would She, Girls! Miss Donaldine Cameron is not only the prettiest student of Stanford University, California, but has been selected as the comeliest of any college cutie in the West. (International.)

A SPORTING WE WILL GO! No Winter fun is too exhausting for Mt. Holyoke College girls. Here's a gay skiing party out early in the morning for a frolic in the snow. The girl in the centre is Miss Margaret E. Chickering of Arlington Heights (Mass., of course). (Fotograms.)



PLAYING THE RACES AT PALM BEACH! Having no track handy, the society folk themselves become prancing steeds. Betty O'Gorman of Providence, R. I., and Drew Johnston



YOU'VE HEARD OF THE MORGAN DANCERS? Well, this young lady is a Morgan dancer in her own right. She's Miss Florence E. Morgan of Brookline, and tonight she dances at Jordan Hall. She specializes in Oriental and barefoot dances.

MISS SOPHIE MACE, 262 East Cottage St., Dorchester, is awarded $5 as today's winner in the Pretty Motorist Test. If only you entrants knew how easy it is to win one of these prizes if you SEND IN CLEAR PICTURES. Try it in the next Test!

"OH, SHOOT," Said "Tobie," as He Was Shooting the Shoots. "Tobie" is one of the few trained alligators alive. His favorite pastime is sliding down the incline. He likes to shoot the shoots so much he is wearing his "tummy" out sliding down the incline. At West Palm Beach.

THIS AUTO BEAR UP WELL! Forgiving us for this atrocious pun, perhaps you'd like to know that this little automobile was built entirely from discarded and worn out bearings. Even the sheet metal hood and body have been punched full of holes and ballbearings inserted in them. It was built by a patient Western dealer in auto parts. It is, perhaps, the most unusual car ever built. (Fotograms.)

SOMEBODY'S Always Takin' the Joy Outa Life! London business men refuse to hire pretty women. Now all the cuties there are trying to look homely. It is said the dearos distract attention of men workers.

IT'S PEACH BLOSSOM TIME IN MIAMI! If you don't believe it, caress your eyes above. This young lady, Miss Mildred Ellett of Miami, has just been awarded a $1,000 prize as the local beauty.

NELLIE BLY OF 'AROUND WORLD' FAME DEAD

Noted "Stunt" Reporter Who Married Millionaire Succumbs to Pneumonia

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Jan. 28.—Nellie Bly is dead.

The world's most famous newspaper woman, first of "stunt" reporters, one of the originators of the human interest article known to the craft as the "sob story," and energetic seeker after adventure, Elizabeth Cochrane Seaman, as she was known in private life, died at St. Mark's Hospital, after a two weeks' illness with pneumonia.

Probably not one woman in ten thousand packs into fifty-six years of life such tremendous activity, accompanied by such astonishingly colorful experience as Nellie Bly managed almost to the day of her death. During her singular career she has been actress, lecturer, globe-trotter and manager of two million dollar corporations, as well as reporter.

TRIP AROUND WORLD.

Of all her thrill-producing exploits, many of which were watched in breathless amazement in Europe, as well as in this country, the one which brought her most fame was the hurry-up trip around the world.

It was after Miss Bly had come to New York in the eighties from Pittsburgh, where she began her newspaper work, that she was seized with appreciation of the spectacular possibilities of a globe encircling trip which would show that Jules Verne's romance, "Around the World in Eighty Days," could be matched in reality.

Starting out from this city she beat the record of the French novelist's hero by accomplishing the stunt in seventy-two days, six hours and eleven minutes.

Another sensation crept over the public when Miss Bly, pretending to be insane, had herself committed to an asylum. After a short incarceration she made a thrilling series of stories from her experience.

A second story of astonishing character was written about her arrest and imprisonment when she played the part of a shoplifter.

MARRIED MILLIONAIRE.

Privately her life was quite as full of adventure as was her career. While working on a newspaper in Chicago she was sent to cover a "stunt" assignment in the Chicago stockyards which made it necessary for her to stand in water nearly all day.

Pneumonia followed and it was while she was convalescing at the Auditorium Hotel in that city that she met Robert L. Seaman, millionaire owner of the Ironclad Manufacturing Company, maker of enamelled iron ware, and of the American Steel Barrel Company, both Brooklyn firms.

Although Miss Bly was not yet thirty and Seaman was more than seventy, they were married and moved into his town house on West Thirty-seventh street. The marriage took place in April, 1895.

Soon afterward there began the series of mishaps which drew Miss Bly into court action with mechanical regularity.

In February, 1904, she caused the arrest of a maid who walked out of her house with $800 worth of jewels, a velvet coat and a neckpiece.

LOST THOUSANDS BY THIEVES.

Shortly afterward a negro who had broken into her home was taken after a desperate fight by the police. She said then that she had lost thousands of dollars' worth of goods through burglary.

After her husband died and she took over management of his manufactories, she was plunged into years of litigation through dishonesty of some of the men associated with her in the two corporations. They robbed her of hundreds of thousands of dollars and forced the firms into technical bankruptcy.

Records show that when she was head of the plants which covered fifty-eight city lots, she paid off $275,000 of debts and increased the annual sales to amount to $4,000,000.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Marriages Are Closely Allying Boston and New York

Mrs. Henry A. Murray, Jr. (Josephine Rantoul) of New York, and formerly of Boston, whose marriage is but one of the many Boston-Harvard-New York alliances. Mrs. Murray is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul of Beverly Farms, whom she frequently visits at their North Shore home.

MRS. HENRY A. MURRAY, JR.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

By BETTY ALDEN

As time goes on, the smart sets of Boston and New York are becoming more and more closely allied, chiefly through marriages, of course, and frequently through changes of residence. All this, naturally, causes the socially elect of Boston to be interested in the fashionable world of Gotham, and vice versa.

Apropos of Boston-New York romances, one of the most important nuptial events allying these two cities was the marriage of Miss Josephine Rantoul, daughter of the Neal Rantouls of Boston, and Henry A. Murray, Jr., of New York. "Jo" Rantoul, as she was known to her intimates, was undoubtedly one of the most popular and attractive girls of her year, no Vincent Club show being complete without this young person's versatile presence and talent. In the picture above she is seen as a natty "soldier boy" in one of the annual shows of the club. Last Summer, by the way, I saw Mrs. Murray, Jr., taking part in a charity entertainment given at the North Shore, where she often is the guest of her parents at the latter's Summer estate at Beverly Farms. In the Winter the former "Jo" Rantoul and her doctor husband make their home at No. 129 East Sixty-ninth street, New York. Their romance took place some five or six years ago.

The Rantoul-Murray romance was but one of the many Boston-Harvard affairs. Dr. Murray being a graduate of the college across the Charles with the class of '15. It would be hard to take account of the very many similar marriages between Boston girls and Harvard men from other cities, especially New York, but society well recalls one of the most recent of these, the wedding of Miss Elizabeth St. John Whiting of Boston to "Alex" Tomes of New York. The marriage was solemnized last October at Emmanuel Church, bringing out a goodly gathering of the bride's Boston friends as well as many of the bridegroom's relatives and friends who came on from New York for the occasion.

Just as marriages between Bostonians and New Yorkers of the smart set are frequent occurrences, it often happens that members of the "first family" contingent here are bidden to Gotham to serve either as best men, ushers, bridesmaids, or maid-of-honor at some important nuptial event.

Thus it is that four young Bostonians, all college friends of the bridegroom, have been asked to serve as ushers at the marriage of Miss Helen Lispenard Steart Trevor to Charles J. Coulter, which is to take place on February 15 in St. Bartholomew's Church, New York.

Young Coulter, the son of Mrs. Charles Coulter of West Forty-ninth street, New York, is a graduate of Harvard, class of '19. William Elliott will act as best man, while the other ushers will be Cassimir de Rham, Francis B. Bradley, John Melcher, Eliot Holt, Vernon H. Brown and Nery Graff Trevor, Jr., the latter a member of the Harvard class of '20.

The bride, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Graff Trevor of East Seventy-eighth street, also of New York, has selected Miss Betty Thompson as maid of honor, while the bridesmaids will be Miss Katherine Van Ingen, Miss Martha Otley, Miss Katherine Hurd and Miss Eleanor Parrish of Richmond, Va.

Following the ceremony, there will be a large reception at the Colony Club. A honeymoon trip of two months will be passed abroad. Tuxedo is to be the future home of the young couple.

BRANDS COLLEGE DEGREES AS MOTH-EATEN

Rev. Edward Cummings Would Have Universities Stop Conferring Them

The Rev. Edward Cummings, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, Exeter street, speaking before a number of educators in King's Chapel, advocated colleges discarding the conferring of such degrees as LL.D. and D.D.

Before urging this change, Dr. Cummings read the parable of the Good Samaritan.

"The usual degrees conferred by colleges mean nothing to the average man," he said. "Who knows what LL.D or D.D. stands for among the common people? Why not give the degrees of G.S. or P.M. to people who have done something in the world and not merely guess it?

"Do you know what G.S. stands for?— Good Samaritan. Give that degree to Herbert Hoover. He is doing things, not thinking them.

"Give the degree of P.M.—Peacemaker—to those who are trying to bring this world together into union of effort and to abolish war.

"The old degrees of colleges are moth eaten. They are fitted for the junk heap."

MISS ANNA QUINN WEDS IN NORTH ADAMS

North Adams, Jan. 28.—Miss Anna Quinn, daughter of Thomas Quinn of East Quincy street, and Joseph M. Fitzgerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Fitzgerald of Brooklyn street, were married in St. Francis Church by the pastor, the Rev. E. P. Dumphy. The couple were attended by Miss Gertrude Quinn, a sister of the bride, and John Fitzgerald, a brother of the bridegroom.

VALUATION PLAN GETS BACKING IN ATTLEBORO

Attleboro, Jan. 28.—The Chamber of Commerce will send Colonel Sidney O. Bigney to Washington to urge passage of the American valuation plan by Congress, inasmuch as the jewelry industry, which is vital to the life of the city, is affected. The Chamber has voted unanimously in favor of the plan, and its vote has been forwarded to Washington.

MR. AND MRS. CURTIS GOULD of Boston are spending several days in Washington.

A new open air swimming pool adjoining the bathing chalets at Palm Beach is attracting many bathers at this popular Winter resort, where many Bostonians are spending the cold months.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Choate and Dr. and Mrs. Hobart Warren of Boston, who are at Palm Beach, were among the guests at the luncheon which Mrs. John Clinton Gray gave on a week at the Everglades Club. Other guests included Mr and Mrs. Leland Storey, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Quentin Jones, Mrs. E. Stewart Webb, Mr. Henry T. Sloane and Edward T. Stotesbury.

A group of debutantes served as ushers at the benefit performance held yesterday afternoon at the Colonial Theatre, at which Fred Stone was the star performer. The affair, given in aid of the Boston Society for the Care of Girls, was arranged by a committee of prominent society women. Miss Margaret Curtis of Mt. Vernon street was in charge of the tickets.

Many dinners will precede the assembly of the All Souls' Lend a Hand Club which takes place at the Hotel Somerset this evening. The assembly is one of a series which is fast finding pronounced favor in the eyes of the younger set.

FLETT AND GIBB TO RUN FOR THE HOUSE

The time for filing nomination papers for the special election for Representative to the General Court in the 28th Middlesex District, composed of Lexington and Belmont, has expired. There will be two candidates for the office, made vacant by the resignation of Representative Guy L. Weymouth of Belmont, who resigned owing to pressure of business and small pay in the Legislature. Both candidates are Republicans and lawyers and reside in Belmont. They are J. Watson Flett and Thomas R. P. Gibb. The primary for the election, which will be February 28, will held on February 14.

MILK LAW VIOLATORS IN CHARLESTOWN COURT

Two violators of the milk law were before Judge Sullivan in the Charlestown Court. Bartholomew Saunders, of Monument avenue, pleaded guilty to a charge of having milk not of good standard quality for sale. He was fined $10, which he paid. Louis Agelopoulos, proprietor of a lunch room on Chelsea street, was found guilty of the same charge and had his case placed on file.

HARDING ACTS TO STOP USURY BY BANKS

Secretary Fall Reveals Loans of U. S. Money to Farmers at Double Rates

By Universal Service.

Washington, Jan. 28.—A financial scandal of nation-wide importance was unearthed at the cabinet meeting.

President Harding was informed by Secretary of the Interior Fall that millions in government money are being released by private bankers in the West and Southwest to farmers and livestock raisers at usurious rates.

Secretary Fall, who has just returned from a two-months' trip through the West, cited instances of abuses which astonished the President and the cabinet.

It was shown that funds of the War Finance Corporation loaned to banks for the use of farmers and stock raisers in the present agricultural emergency at 6½ and 6 per cent., were pyramided at as high as 12 per cent. In addition, many of those banks are alleged to have charged an extra commission on these loans.

"The government is not going to tolerate usury," President Harding is reported to have said.

HARDING ACTS.

The President called into conference Eugene Meyer, Jr., chairman of the War Finance Corporation. Mr. Meyer stated that if conditions as revealed by Secretary Fall exist, the banks concerned were violating both the letter and the spirit of the law.

Both Meyer and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon told the President that practically all of the government money is being loaned at 5 1-2 per cent, and they denounced the practices revealed by Secretary Fall as unlawful.

Mr. Meyer stated that the 2 per cent. allowed to private bankers was more than ample to cover the cost of their investigation and their risk with profit. This would mean that the total interest rate on the loan should not exceed 7 1-2 per cent.

President Harding asked Mr. Meyer directly if all interest charges of more than 7 1-2 per cent. were not usury.

"Ordinarily, that is so," was Meyer's reply.

WANTS PRESS TO AID.

President Harding told the news paper correspondents yesterday after noon that he relied upon the newspapers to help terminate this evil, by broadcasting the facts to stock growers and farmers, that if they are charged more than 7½ per cent. interest for government money, they are being defrauded.

Withdrawal of government funds from the offending banks will be the first step taken by the administration to check the rapacity of the bankers concerned. In addition, it is expected that the government will permit the institution of suits to recover overcharge of interest. Treasury agents will be instructed immediately to investigate the situation and make reports of misuse of government funds by the private banks.

ROMANCE ARISES FROM LE BAUDY MURDER

Daughter of Slain "Emperor of Sahara" to Wed Young Frenchman

New York, Jan. 28.—Out of the ashes of the celebrated LeBaudy murder case, a romance has arisen. Jacqueline LeBaudy, daughter of the slain "Emperor of the Sahara," is the heroine. The romance began on the day that her mother killed her father.

News of the marriage of Jacqueline to Roger Sudreau of Paris was received by Yale Dr. Ernest Suffern, No. 135 Broadway, administrator of Jacques LeBaudy's estate.

Jacqueline LeBaudy, while with her mother on a business trip to Paris to settle the LeBaudy estate, met young Sundreau. He is the son of Henri Sudreau, who has represented Mrs. LeBaudy in the French courts. Roger Sudreau fell in love with the girl a year ago. But the marriage came as quite unexpected news to friends here. The groom is twenty-one and the bride seventeen.

MAY GET MILLIONS.

Mr. Sudreau said he thought it possible the French courts would now consider Jacqueline LeBaudy Sudreau of age because of her marriage, and that she may now have access to her millions scattered over the globe.

Henri Sudreau is prominent in the public life of Paris. Last Fall he crossed on the same ship as Mrs. LeBaudy and her daughter to attend the disarmament conference.

Jacques LeBaudy, father of the young girl, was one of the most eccentric figures of the last century. From his father he inherited seventy-five million dollars. To be a king became his dream. And he picked the Sahara desert for his realm.

"EMPEROR OF SAHARA."

He issued decrees and called himself the "Emperor of Sahara," and caused considerable stir among nations. But the French government took his realm away.

Then the disappointed "Emperor" bought the "Lodge" in Westbury, L. I., which was the scene of his tragic end at the hands of his wife, whom he had consistently mistreated.

PAWTUCKET TO HAVE $1,000,000 HIGH SCHOOL

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 28.—The passage of a resolution authorizing the city treasurer to issue notes for school purposes will place $800,000 at the disposal of the city government toward the erection of the proposed million-dollar high school.

WORCESTER BRIDE OF FEW HOURS MISSING

Worcester, Jan. 28.—Bernice Kalogias of No. 5 Milton street, whose married life was interrupted a few hours after her marriage to Peter M. Magolis, No. 9 Diamond street, has failed to return home, although she told Boston police that she intended to go home when they interviewed her this week. Her parents are responsible for her separation from her husband. They wanted her to wed Peter J. Kazlauskas, a wealthy Boston man.

WILL SPEAK AT TRINITY CHURCH, NEWTON CENTRE

Miss Helolse E. Horsey will make an address in Trinity Church, Newton Centre, at 7:15 o'clock Sunday night, on "The Book by Which We Live." This address has made a great impression on those who have heard it. This occasion will be the only opportunity to hear Miss Horsey in Newton Centre this Winter.

ATTLEBORO TEACHERS FORM READING CLUB

Attleboro, Jan. 28.—The public school teachers have organized a reading club to study the book, "Essentials of Psychology." The officers are: Miss Avis Hodges, president; Miss E. Claire Kennedy, vice-president; Miss Marjorie Dean, secretary; Miss A. Erva Kennedy, treasurer.

B. U. GIRLS TO PLAY GAME OF HOCKEY

Will Be Feature of Ice Carnival at the Arena February 27

A hockey game between the girls of the College of Secretarial Science and the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University, in which Marion Pickles, the best all-around girl at C. L. A., will star, is to be one of the outstanding features of the All-Boston University Ice Carnival at the Arena, February 27. It was decided by the committee today that girls from all the departments of the university would be permitted to take part in the Indian club and other special races which are to be held as part of the program.

A grand march in costume, in which a large number of students will take part, will be the first feature of the evening. A prize is to be offered for the costume judged the best by members of the faculty of the art department.

In spite of the fact that there has been no money appropriated for the development of hockey as a university sport this year, several departments have taken it up on their own initiative. "Brick" O'Hare, captain of last year's football team, has got together a sizable hockey squad at the Law School. The College of Business Administration and the Medical School have also made up teams of their own. The College of Business Administration team is to play the Law School team at the Boston University carnival for the first time.

There will be potato and medley races for the men of all departments. A four-lap race and fancy skating are also scheduled as part of the evening's program. Captain George A. Davis of the military department has been elected chairman of the committee in charge of the carnival and Philip Richardson of Brookline will act as secretary.

PASTOR WHO DESTROYED BIG CHECK COMING HERE

The Rev. M. C. Eldson, pastor of the Beacon Hill Baptist Church, San Antonio, Texas, who recently tore up a check for $3,000 given him as a mark of gratitude on the part of John Duncan, a railroad man, for his conversion, will soon come to Boston and preach in Tremont Temple.

Pastor Eldson, when asked to explain why he tore up the check which he might have used with good effect, replied: "I am preaching to win souls and not for the almighty dollar."

ROBSON IS FAVORITE FOR BOUT WITH SIEGAL AT C. A. C. SHOW TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

Tommy Robson, sturdy Malden puncher, will go to the post a betting favorite for his ten-round bout with Nate Siegal which will be staged at the Commercial A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

There is considerable interest in the bout, as both boys have large local followings. The fact that Siegal is going out of his class has also added interest to the contest.

The conflict will be at 134 pounds. This gives Robson a weight advantage of about six pounds. This may be just enough to swing the battle in his favor.

It is not expected that there will be many idle moments, once festivities get underway. Robson and Siegal are both wide open fighters who delight in getting to close quarters where they receive an opportunity to bang away with both hands.

It will be Robson's first Boston start since 'his victory over Mike Gibbons at the Arena. The latter engagement Robson proved he is going better right now than at any time during his career, Gibbons entered the ring a heavy favorite, but was nevertheless handed a decisive setback.

Robson cannot very well afford to receive a trimming at this time, as he is booked to meet Jack Malone at St. Paul on February 10, while he also hopes to secure a tussel with Mike Gibbons at St. Paul early in March.

With Johnny Wilson having all kinds of difficulties, Robson knows of no reason why he should not be given serious consideration in deciding the middleweight muddle. Robson is not the least bit fearful of stating he would be able to knock out Wilson, while he also believes he could dispose of most of the other middleweight stars without much trouble.

Siegal considers tonight's bout his big opportunity. If he can win over Robson, he will be ranked higher than any of our New England welterweights, while the noble middleweights in this part of the country also be obliged to give him consideration.

Nate doesn't believe he will be bothered by the fact Robson will have a weight advantage. He says he plans to force the issue and that he will do most of the fighting in close and thus discount the power of Robson's right.

* * *

There will also be three eight-round affairs.

Reservations may be secured at Room 12, No. 28 School street.

Matchmaker Al Lacey of the River ton A. C. of Chelsea announces a strong go-for-the-money ten-round tour boxing contract to be held in the Chelsea Theatre this evening. There will be seven bouts and many of the fastest boxers in the 112 and 126 pound class will compete. There will also be a special novice class for the 135-pound boys.

The Carlyle Club will present a card of three bouts and a wrestling match next Monday night at the Grand Opera House. The feature bout will be between Carlie Rollo of the South End and Mickey Travers of New Haven. These boys have been leading challenges at each other for a long time and now that Travers has defeated Champman and Bobby Josephs the Carlyle matchmaker has signed them will the understanding that the winner will meet Chick Suggs for the New England title two weeks later at the same club. The boys have posted $200 each to make the weight.

The other two bouts will bring together Dick Russell of Lynn and Johnny Brown of Cambridge, and Frankie Harris of Somerville and Tommy French of Newton. An eight which will open the show, has yet to be arranged.

The Somerville boxing followers are in for another treat when the George Dilboy Post, G. P. M., run their second monthly show at the Arena on February 5. The first show the soldier men ran was a success and over staged in this section, and the committee in charge promises to put over this time that will surely surpass their initial effort, in which twenty-six bouts were run off with speed and regularity.

Four classes will be shown—112, 126, 135 and 175 pounds—and any boy desiring to appear that evening can do so by getting in touch with Jay Recruiting Sergeant Sam, K. of C. Building, Somerville. Quite a few local boys who have been eager to show their "townies" how good they are with the mitts have already sent in their applications.

There is a letter at this office for Jim McDonald.

TECH SPARRERS IN BOUTS WITH CAMBRIDGE

Engineers' Boxing Team Will Make Debut in Tournament Against the "Y"

The Technology boxing team will make its debut this afternoon in a tournament with the Cambridge Y at Walker Memorial.

Judging from the performances the Tech boxers have been putting up in the elimination bouts, the "Y" has its work cut out for it, but it has already made an enviable reputation for itself so far this season.

The Y will send Steinberg to battle Al Lindsay in the 115-pound class, as was the 115-pound representative last year, when he was a freshman.

Hall Smith, Y. M. C. A. three cushion technical knockout on Cook in the Tech eliminations tryout, will box the Y's 125 pounder, M. Gunaral.

Technology will be represented by Lew Phillips in the 135-pound class. Phillips is a native of New Zealand, and holds the amateur championship of that country and Australia. The Y has Hulton as its defender. It is possible that this evening may be left to box because of wrist trouble. In that case Joe Ryan, runner up to Smith will meet Lew Phillips.

Captain Ed. Moll, the little marvel who cleaned up three men in eight fast rounds, is scheduled to fight the Y entry, Bill Klein, for 145-pound honors.

Mike Komosky has been picked to box for Tech in the 160-pound class. He will have O'Connell of the Y as his opponent.

The Y is short on heavyweight material, and will therefore not have any 175-pound boxer. To make up for this, Manager Powell will stage an exhibition bout in that class between Schultz and Abbott.

CHICAGO WILL SEND TEAM TO GYM TOURNEY

The University of Chicago gymnastic team may enter the Eastern intercollegiate meet which will be held at Technology during the latter part of March, according to word from Director of Athletics A. A. Stagg.

Prospects at the Western institution are bright this season with all three "C" men back, each of whom figured largely in winning the 1921 Conference championship. They are Kesler, Morris and Schmidenbach.

From the freshman boy squad of last year Coach Hoffner will be able to pick at least seven good men. Hamlin, Hickerton, Burgess and Elliott are the most promising.

Alfred Director Stagg, about six years ago, decided to give an incentive to the men who have ability in gymnastics by allotting a number of letters in the team, the Maroons won three Western championships, in 1917, 1920 and 1921. In 1917 the Chicagoans were the national intercollegiate champions.

MITCHELL MILITARY BOYS WILL PLAY MIDDLESEX

The Mitchell Military Boys' School of Billerica has a strong hockey team. Donald Cady is captain. He plays at centre.

Joel Whitney is manager, and he has arranged several games, the next contest will be played with the Middlesex School seconds outfit in North Cambridge, Feb. 4. The Mitchell lineup includes also Bradbury, left wing; Wells, right wing; H. Leach, left defence; E. Leach, right defence, and Heath goal.

Ralph R. Rainsford, the new resident athletic coach the school has ever had, is directing the activities.

Sir Cleves liked the stiff going and headed, was kept consistently in early stages and ridden out in last quarter. John Arbor began slowly, but moved up with a rush after going three-quarters and was going gamest at the end. Why Care tired after going three-quarters. Start King and Dahabiah 2nd were done after going half a mile.

Scratched—Alex Jr. and King Trojan.

FITCHBURG BASKETBALL TEAM BEATS LEOMINSTER

Fitchburg, Jan. 28.—The annual inter-city basketball clash between the Fitchburg High School and the Leominster High School, took place at Assembly Hall of the high school last night, Fitchburg carrying away the honors by handing Leominster a defeat, the score being Fitchburg 37 and Leominster 17.

Bunny Shea and Hobba excelled for Fitchburg, and Piper and Simard for Leominster. Both schools had a large number of rooters on hand to make things interesting.

Fitchburg's next game will be with the Gloucester High School at Gloucester, February 3.

COLLYER NAMES HIGH COST IN THE THIRD

Also Picks Prince K., Ticklish, Tom Hare, Jr., United Verde and Verity

By Bert E. Collyer

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 28.—High Cost. Now, listen bo, despite the fact that this maverick is the tuffest nag in the world to guess—I have it no strong that those Kaintuckian hard-boots are going to mop up today that I am forced to stick old High Cost on top. Unless the gang at the track is shooting at the clouds he'll be on the Bill Dailey all the way. Knit Grass looks like the one to beat. That last effort was a humdinger. Serapis may come to life and run a good race. Too much speed here for the balance of the field.

In the day's opener I expect Prince K. to repeat that last winning effort. Old Man Top, with Hughie up, is a smartec chocker ever held a split-second watch, tells me Dan this is a colt of more than ordinary calibre. Indeed, if he has a set of good timbers this $10,000 son of Peter Pan that figures close up with the Jones entry almost sure to break inside the money.

Ticklish has finally found that long desired soft spot. Only needs clear sailing in order to ring the bell. Jock Scot looks good for the place. Tab him closely. May Bodine will find the going just to her liking.

Tom Hare, Jr., is the class in the fourth and only needs a sweet ride in order to look the money in the neck. Commander McMeekin's last was too good to be true. Listened like a best race to come. They will likely make him favorite but that makes no never mind. There is no opposition of the brand that with a decent boy in the cup.

United Verde is a mud-running foal. Is keyed to concert pitch and ready to run a good race. Has only to be given to set the works in on Bunga Buck. Has a chance to spill the beans, too. Ginger's Champion will be the boy to beat by the sticky going.

Look out for that consistent performer, Verity, in the sixth. She never will be better than right now and likely is always good to have the purses. Jack Reeves will go well, if his gets close to the pill.

General Haig looks like a set-up in the last. Has the class of his company. Will right reserved by Collyer News Bureau.

Midget Smith Chases Champion Buff to England

Midget Smith, the bantamweight, is contemplating a trip across the water to his manager, Harry Neary. The purpose of the proposed transatlantic journey by the little boxer is to force Johnny Buff, world's bantamweight title-holder, into a championship match.

Neary, on behalf of Smith, has sought to induce Buff to defend his title here against the Harlemite before sailing for a ten-weeks' engagement in London, England, but the Jersey City veteran has declined and are ranging up to $25,000. Failing in his efforts to secure a title struggle before Buff's departure, Neary has declared he had determined upon a trip to England for Smith for the purpose of forcing the latter's campaign for a title struggle.

SKI CHAMPION TO JUMP IN VERMONT

Brattleboro, Vt., Jan. 28.—The Vermont State amateur ski jumping contest will be held at Dummerston on Saturday, February 4, will be featured by the performances of Anton Aaurer, ski jumping champion of Switzerland, who will give exhibition jumps during the afternoon. He has a record jump of 207 feet to his credit. Among the contestants who have entered the Hats is John Carleton of Dartmouth, intercollegiate ski jumping champion. A new jumping course, 750 feet long, has been constructed on a natural hill.

DARTMOUTH AND M. I. T. RESUME CORDIAL RELATIONS

Hanover, N. H., Jan. 28.—Dartmouth College and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have resumed cordial relations, according to an announcement of the Dartmouth Athletic Council. Tech authorities have retracted the charges made several weeks ago to the effect that Dartmouth had committed a breach of faith and have made an apology.

In view of the resumption of relations, it is practically certain that the two institutions will meet again in all lines of sports, although it has been found inadvisable to renew the dates which were cancelled at the time of the break.

Along with this announcement of the Dartmouth Athletic Council comes the publication of the letter received from Allan W. Rowe, secretary-treasurer of the M. I. T., advisory council on athletics, which formally retracted the charge of breach of faith.

The announcement of the Dartmouth council is as follows: As a result of certain charges made by the athletic council of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology against the Dartmouth Athletic Council, and the breaking of athletic relations by the former, a conference was held by representatives of the two institutions at the office of Dartmouth on Saturday, January 14.

Following the conference, the following letter was received by Professor Burton of the Dartmouth Athletic Council:

Forbes Says House Cleaning in New York Stock Exchange Has Only Begun

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By B. C. FORBES—

New York, Jan. 28.—Spring house-cleaning is quietly going on in Wall Street. An important announcement will be made next week considering some of the Stock Exchange's activities in this direction. Several serious evils are now being probed by authorities, who are sincerely anxious to remove all just grounds for criticism. The drumming out of the Stock Exchange to the members found guilty of dishonorable practices is only a beginning.

How much more do some rich men get out of life than do other rich men! While travelling through Ohio the week I read in the Cleveland newspapers the announcement of a gift of a medical school to Western Reserve University by Samuel Mather. This will cost some two million dollars. It did one's heart good to read what the local newspaper had to say about their fellow citizen and his record of good deeds. Mr. Mather apparently has all along used his means generously for the benefit of his native city. Moreover, he has actively interested himself in various worthy national movements, such as the Red Cross and the Carnegie Peace Foundation, of which he is a trustee.

I have never met Mr. Mather, but I feel quite certain that he has derived quite as much satisfaction from applying some of his wealth to noble purposes as he has derived from money-making. And this nation has been that men who find pleasure in giving away money wisely, wisely expending their material measure of pleasure and satisfaction in earning money, because they know that the more they can earn the greater will be their ability to give away money for beneficent purposes.

The rich simpleton who lives for himself alone and whose only motive in making money is for money's sake is a poor fellow-up specimen of citizen.

Mr. Mather salutations.

Congress is finding it easier to endorse a bonus for ex-soldiers than to discover how to raise the necessary hundreds and hundred of millions of dollars. The money-raising problem doesn't promise to be solved in a hurry.

* * *

Some two weeks ago I sat at a banquet near a man seventy-five years old. He looked amazingly fresh, healthy, vigorous. I wondered how many more years he would live. He looked good for at least twenty years more. Not only did he look amazingly fit, but I knew that he was living a life calculated to insure a ripe old age. I recalled having asked him at his seventieth birthday how he had been able to preserve his mental and physical powers so unusually well, and in reply he recited to us the following:

"Though I look old, yet I am strong and lusty,
For in my youth I never did apply
Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood,
Nor did not with unbashful forehead woo
The means of weakness and debility."

At an age when most men woo the arm-chair this man penetrated far into the rich search for gold, particularly bears. And he got them, too.

His funeral took place yesterday. A few days after the banquet he was knocked down by a fifth avenue bus and seriously injured.

There was A. Barton Hepburn, one of New York's ablest, best-balanced bankers, chairman of the highest type, a most generous giver of money for educational and similar helpful purposes, a patriot, a citizen suffering with a desire to serve his fellow men, unsparing of his time as well as his purse in the public interest.

Incidentally, not a few of American's more "modern" bankers have lately had reason to regret that they did not confine their activities to the kind of activities prosecuted by Mr. Hepburn. He was a banker, not a gambler.

A man from the West button-holed me yesterday and gave me this dressing-down:

"Why don't you come out West and let us work out of your system the pessimistic poison that you here in New York are breathing?" And he had been making myself believe that I had been at least half-way optimistic all through the months when most people saw nothing but disaster ahead. Indeed, I have never then once received letters asking me if I really believed that things were going to turn out as I was predicting.

I was reminded of what a veteran barber said me the other day. One of his customers used to be Senator Aldrich. The barber happened to remark one day that it was difficult to please everybody. The redoubtable Senator immediately replied: "A man who tries is a——ass."

Have you not found it so?

Any concern that is able to weather the storm of 1920-1921 ought to be able to do at least moderately well in 1922. But I cannot imagine for a moment that the going will be easy and smooth and pleasant. Not only will ordinary profits, easily earned commissions, high salaries or high wages for half-hearted work, as we have all learned, ly will not return this year even should the confidently looked-for improvement in business exceed expectations. Although, to quote George Edward Smith, the birds have returned to the bushes, it will still take a lot of hard beating to bag them.

And, after all, isn't it better for us all that it should be so? What credit is there in achieving what any fool could do? Success won without serious opposition is nothing to brag about. The expert runner takes no joy in winning a race against a field of cuts. Those who come out on top this year will have to exercise every ounce of ingenuity and energy and effort they can muster.

But it can be done. And there will be genuine credit in doing it.

Unemployment has been reduced one-half in the last four months declares the Department of Labor. Within the next four months the total should again be reduced one-half or more.

RATE DECISION MAY BENEFIT NEW HAVEN

Buying Continues on That Expectation; Market Without Trend

By BROADAN WALL.
Registered U. S. Patent Office, 1923.

New York, Jan. 27.—The stock market backed and filled on a substantially reduced volume of business but did not show any definite trend one way or the other.

Specialties were most active, but the pools were content to permit their favorites to rest until the general list emerges from the present rut.

The day, however, was not without some new high records, this being particularly true of American Ice preferred, Nominated, U. S. Food Products attracted attention by causing its downward movement to a new low record.

Buying of New Haven continued in expectation that the decision in the New England rate case would result in substantially better profits in the immediate future.

Total turnover for the full session showed a substantial contraction over the previous session, business was almost entirely confined to the operations of professionals and floor traders. An influx of a limited sized amount of orders that came onto the floor at best failed to do more than at one time only nine numbers were flashed for brokers on the board in the exchange which calls them to their telephones.

UTILITIES IMPROVE.

Weakness in utilities was also somewhat reduced by reason of an interruption to wires to the South where many large specialists are spending vacations.

Selling of General Motors at the close was attributed to genuine investment.

Earnings and the financial position of public utilities have improved to such an extent that some of the commissions now find themselves in position where they can finance their requirements through the sale of common stock.

There has been some quiet buying of Rexall by Cooper interests on by people who state that the earnings of the company for the fourth quarter of last year made a favorable showing. The stock was heavy Thursday and receded to the lowest level movement was made of the new stock issue. It was reported yesterday that the fourth quarter earnings would be published very shortly.

DUCRIES STEEL RUMORS.

Rumors that the Youngstown steel merchers have fallen through are apparently part of a campaign of propaganda to either depress the stock following in the steel shares or create a short interest in that group. It is learned on very good authority that the following in the steel shares or create a short interest in that group. CLEVELAND ON SOLID BASIS OF FINANCE

Mergers by Trust Companies Make City No Longer Dependent on Others

By RICHARD SPILLANE.
(Copyright, 1922, by Public Ledger Co.)

Cleveland in former years had a large number of banks. Now it has a few big banks with many branches Cleveland used to depend upon New York or Chicago for assistance in financial enterprises of particular size. Now it is able to finance its business without trouble.

What Cleveland has done and is doing is emphasized by the announcement that the Cleveland Trust Company is taking over two more State banks, the Lake Shore and the Garfield. The last-named has 16 total of branches up to thirty-five or forty.

CITY SERVED BETTER.

The Union Trust, which now is one of Cleveland's giants, was formed a year ago by the merger of two of the largest of the banking and loan several of the savings and trust companies.

These two big banks have added greatly to the financial strength of the city.

They haven't the field to themselves by any means, but they lead. There is the Society for Savings, which has large deposits, the National City and Locomotive Engineers National Bank, which has grown very fast, and there are other units of good proportions.

The city is served much better now in a banking way than ever before. It doesn't pay heavy toll elsewhere for financial accomodation. Its business people are served at home.

In what it has done Cleveland simply is following the course of the times. The bank with large capital and large deposits can finance what several moderate size banks would hesitate about undertaking.

UNITY MADE GERMANY.

Throughout the world unity in banking has been the rule for the last decade. Germany's financial power and ability to handle great operations has been due in large measure to the fact that the big banking aggregations have been formed. So, too, with the British. Five years ago the British banks have 1,000 or more branches. In New York, the banking groups are fairly well defined. But the banks of which you hear little have dozens, if not scores, of branches.

One bank with $23,000,000 capital and big deposits can do far more than ten or fifteen banks with $2,000,000 capital, but as one compact, well directed, well officered body can do more than a vaguely of scattered bodies.

The British are very hopeful of the industries fair to see held simultaneously in the City of London and at Birmingham from February 17 to March 10. The London section will comprise leather and leather goods, paper and drugs, jewelry, electro plate, musical instruments, and Birmingham will show metals, hardware and engineering.

Last year the White City there were over five miles of stands.

The fair is unique in that admittance is restricted to business and bona fide trade buyers. The exhibitors are all manufacturers. As the proceeds of each industry are disposed side by side rivalry naturally is keen and the buyer profits.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

—By MONITOR—

NEW York, Jan. 28.—The stock market was a dull drifting affair with the Bullish features provided almost entirely by a few minor specialties, most of which had been aggressively exploited recently. Davison Chemical worked up above 62, and the Columbia Graphophone issues were active and strong on reports of new plans for the financial rehabilitation of the company. American Sumatra was heavily sold, but covering caused it to close at a net gain. Republic Iron & Steel was weak in marked contrast to Bethlehem B, which registered again for the day. U. S. Steel was practically stationary. Public service Corporation of New Jersey worked in new high ground on rumors of probable dividend increase.

GENERAL News was mixed. Call money was stiff. Commodities showed a tendency to recover, although the upturn in cotton was believed to be due largely to short covering. Exchanges were firm, with demand sterling at the highest level in two years.

THE weekly statement of the Federal Reserve System showed a gain of 1.2 per cent. to the new high level of 77.2. The decisive items were covered by a large reduction in note circulation, a decrease in deposit liabilities and an increase in reserves.

MUCH of the hesitancy now displayed may be created to manipulative possibility of the bonus legislation. Thus far the market has paid little attention to the consideration of such matters. Political developments indicate its adoption there is little doubt that the course of sterling would register more decidedly the adverse verdict of financial sentiment.

FREEPORT, Texas, is a sulphur stock which has not received much use of the Texas Gulf Sulphur. Activity in the former was ascribed to the organization of a new pool which plans to bring the price of Freeport to a line with that of Texas Gulf sulphur.

NEW Haven was the feature of strength in the low priced rails. In addition to the return to the company of the trolley lines which was rumored it is understood that the Interstate Commerce Commission will within a short time announce new through traffic freight rates for New England delivery which will be advantageous to the company. There has been persistent accumulation of the stock for important banking interests for many months.

ONE firm had a private report of the first shipment of Venezuelan oil that has been made to the Royal Dutch Company. The oil comes from the properties of the Gerger Corporation under which the terms of an agreement reached some months ago with the Royal Dutch it is to be paid 25 per cent. net on the oil shipped. Firms committed to the construction of the General Asphalt Co. maintained that this contract will prove a very bullish factor in the price of the stock.

It is understood that Central Leather now is operating at about 47 per cent. of capacity as compared with approximately 55 per cent. in the last six months of 1921. The annual statement will be made public presently and it is the semi-official view that the operations will show a profit during the last three months of 1921 and that the profits for the year as understood to have been settled and trade in leather is restricted to business and bona fide trade buyers. The exhibitors are all manufacturers. As the proceeds of each industry are disposed side by side rivalry naturally is keen and the buyer profits.

AMERICAN Sumatra Tobacco preferred sold at the lowest price recorded since the stock was listed. Sellers professed doubt as to the payment of the 3½ per cent. semi-annual dividend, usually made in March. The corporation has on hand a new crop made at high cost, and the market for tobacco products is poor. Its cash and loss surplus of about $1,500,000; inventories of the old crop at about $2,000,000 and those of the new crop at about $4,000,000. Storing the leaf will not be considered good policy. Officials profess to be unprehensive, and say that while the company owes about $4,000,000 it has about $1,500,000 in cash and about $6,000,000 in receivables.

SELLING in the rubber stocks is reported as due to the break in crude rubber prices. It is asserted that pools which have been operating in these stocks had distributed part of their speculative holdings acquired on the decline early in the month, and are waiting before replacing them.

IT was semi-officially reported that the stockholders of the Ajax Rubber Company have taken practically all of the new stock offered at par recently offered at $12.50 per share.

PROFESSIONALS offered Republic Iron & Steel, and under the influence of this selling the price declined to 69¾, a sharp break for the independent steels just before the close was due to short covering.

CALL money opened and renewed at 4 per cent., and loans on time at 4½ o'clock advanced to 5½ per cent. As was the case Thursday, there was a heavy calling of loans in the early noon. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's announcement of the refunding operation, the new issue bearing 4¼ per cent., has served to dampen the ardor of the bullish enthusiasm who looked for a continued low money rate. Reports have been prevalent for several weeks that the Federal Reserve Bank would reduce its rediscount rate here. In well informed banking circles it is not believed that any reduction in the rediscount rate will be made for some time.

THE coppers were inclined to heaviness. The trade reports demand for the metal as small, and while the large producers are holding their quotation at 13¾—14 cents for delivery to the end of March, some of the smaller dealers are offering spot metal at 13¾ cents, and it is said that this quotation would be shaded for attractive business.

MOTOR NEWS AND NOTES-:- By C. F. Donnocker

LOCOMOBILE OF 1899 VINTAGE TO BE SHOWN

Steam Car Owned by Ohio Man to Be Driven in Chicago Show Procession

The Locomobile Company has received word from the management of the Chicago National Automobile Show, opening today, that the Locomobile will be featured in a unique exhibition in connection with the show.

A Locomobile steam car, built in 1899 and owned by John Barry, No. 8603 East Fifth street, Dayton, Ohio, will be driven by the owner at the head of a procession preceding the opening of the show.

The show management has been engaged for many years seeking the oldest car in the United States, made by one of the exhibitors at the show, and privately owned and still in running condition. In its search for this particular car the management agreed to pay all the expenses of shipping the car to and from the show, also the expense of the owner accompanying same.

The single condition was that the car must be able to run under its own power from the point of arrival to the show building, and that it should remain on exhibition during the week. More than two hundred applied for the honor. The oldest car still capable of running ten miles an hour was a steamer made in 1857, but this was not eligible for exhibition because it was not made by a manufacturer of us today.

The committee selected Mr. Barry's Locomobile from a long list of applicants as being the most representative of the car they were seeking. The second choice was an Oldsmobile, probably made in 1901.

ASK MR. FIX IT

Dear Mr. Fix-it.—Have a 1921 Ford, and have trouble with generator. The oil is down in through timing gears and gets on commutator and brushes. Is there a gasket on front bearing? There is none on rear. Can you tell me how to stop it?—R. S. Hall, Bellingham, Mass.

Reply.—Scrape, scrape, scrape. Then when you get through scrape all the fresh bearing and you should screw both front and rear bearings. Put oil and brushes in the oil and has refused the old ones.

Dear Mr. Fix-it.—I have a Metz Model 22 tourist car and would like to know how to keep it from getting out of time so often. I have set the car down and tried to time it over but have to set the spark and always about the time I get home it is out of time. Can you tell me how to set it so it will stay?—Subscriber.

Reply.—Set the spark with the engine running and you should have no trouble. If it won't go down far enough it would be time to clean the carbon. Would it be all right to grind it on the valve grinding machine? This car has a set spark.

Dear Mr. Fix-it.—Please tell me C. Lowell Mass.

Reply.—Undoubtedly the magneto for the spark when the piston has just passed top dead center on the compression or power stroke. You can use vaseline mixed with graphite to fit the sparks on the shaft. If you have a Ford car with the Friction Drive Service Station will tell you how to remove the shaft with cogs and also give you the setting for the timing gears.

Dear Mr. Fix-it.—I have had a great deal of trouble with the cylinder heads of my car (Chalmers 1917 roadster) blowing off. Have had them ground and have new gaskets. The cylinder block and head have been machined. The head is not machined true. There is no doubt some of the water jacket is filled with sediment. Is there any other way of covering both surfaces with gasket cement? Have had to have my head ground twice before and it is a good deal of trouble to get the block and head should be correctly lined up. Would it be better to have the head replaced. The cylinder head bolts have always been tightened by torque wrench.—Subscriber, Boston.

Reply.—The block and head should be perfectly true from the factory and when head is replaced and you should use shellac on your gaskets. It is easy to remember to tighten the nut the cylinder head bolt holes, as the last thread that you have common filler and the other that you have drawn up when the nut is tightened. Tighten the nuts consecutively your head bolt holes and then go around and tighten down. Clean out these bolt-holes and have a drop of oil on the bolt when you put it in.

Dear Mr. Fix-it.—Kindly explain the use of the split nut in automobile spring. Also how does it differ from the plain nut?—H. J. Holbrook, Mass.

Reply.—The split-nut is a four division which permits more accurate management of valve. There are a thousand split-nuts in one nut. If this does not fully answer what you want to know please let us know further.

Dear Mr. Fix-it.—To settle an argument I says that there was a race between motor cars between New York and San Jose. This was about ten years ago and that's thousand or more miles. Please state if this was accomplished and names of parties who won the route.—Reply.

"A" wins, and the details are printed in another article on this page.

RETAIL SALES OF FORD OVER A MILLION

Enclosed Cars Are Gaining in Popularity; Price Cut a Feature

Retail sales of Ford cars, trucks and Fordson tractors have again exceeded the million mark for the year 1921, according to a statement given out yesterday by the Ford Motor Company.

The Ford plant and assembly plant production figures reached a total of 1,050,740 cars, trucks and tractors for the year, with retail sales by dealers approximating 1,093,000, which, in the United States alone, surpassed the 1920 retail sales record by 104,212 Ford cars and trucks.

OUTLOOK OPTIMISTIC.

The Ford Company says the outlook for 1922 is decidedly optimistic. It, fact, concrete evidences already exist in Ford car and truck retail sales for December, 1921, exceeded December, 1920 sales by almost 25 per cent., and Fordson tractor retail sales for the same periods show an increase of over 100 per cent. for December, 1921, as well as an increase over the total tractor sales for the month of November.

Another point brought out by a comparison of production figures for the past two years shows that Ford enclosed cars are gaining in popularity.

Recent reductions in Ford car and truck prices brought them to a new level. This is the fourth price cut in the past sixteen months. During that time the price of the Touring car alone has been cut from $575 to $348, a reduction of 40 per cent. Reductions on some of the other types have been even greater.

EMPLOYS 40,000 MEN.

The Ford Company believes that this reduction, while a drastic one, is especially important at this time, as it should go a long way toward stabilizing market conditions.

Ford is giving employment at present to approximately 40,000 men in his main plant at Detroit, the importance of which is emphasized when consideration is given to the fact that nearly 20 per cent. of the city's population is directly dependent upon the Ford Motor Company.

BIG AUTO RACE N. Y. TO PARIS HELD IN 1908

Six Cars Competed and Total Distance Covered Was 21,000 Miles

Answering a query in the Mr. Fix-It column, the details of the famous race from New York to Paris are given below in full.

The race from New York to Paris started February 12, 1908. The route was from New York city to Buffalo, Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne, San Jose, San Francisco to Japan, Vladivostok, Moscow, St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris.

Total distance on land and water of about 21,000 miles. This figure being as a crow flies and does not include numerous detours. Elapsed time 170 days. Total running time 88 days. Daily average 152 miles per day. Longest day's run 420 miles.

SIX CARS COMPETED.

Approximately 250,000 persons saw the start. Six cars competed. The contestants were: De Dion, French; Motz Bloc French; Sizaire et Naudin, French; Zust, Italian; Protos, German, and Thomas, American.

The race was run during the time when the temperature was frequently below zero. The roads were covered with deep snow for miles, or the mountain mud of the Urals.

George Schuster, former superintendent of the Henshaw Motor Company's Boston service station, was the winning driver. He was accompanied by Montague Roberts, Correspondent Williams of the New York Times.

The American car beat its nearest competitor across the continent by eleven days.

President Roosevelt received the members of the team which completed the American automobile successfully to victory upon their return.

Of course the cars were transported across the water in boats.

MEXICAN GARRISON REPORTED IN REVOLT

Laredo, Texas, Jan. 28.—Only meager details have reached here of the revolt of the Mexican Garrison at Monterrey, the fifth largest city in the city on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande River. Mexican authorities in Nuevo Laredo declined to make a statement other than it was an "insignificant affair." A telegram from the soldiers of the garrison, numbering 150 well-armed men, were in possession of the post and had no idea of surrendering. Garrisons at other points in the State of Tamaulipas were reported to be perfectly loyal.

WATERVILLE COLLEGE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Waterville, Me., Jan. 28.—South College, erected in 1821 as the first building of what is now Colby College, and used as a boys' dormitory, was damaged to about $50,000 by fire early this morning. The fire started on the third floor of the north end of the brick structure, and burned through the upper story and roof.

GIVEN 5 TO 10 YEARS FOR $270,000 THEFT

New York, Jan. 28.—Harry R. Gibney, of the Hotel Touraine, Brooklyn, was sentenced to from five to ten years for stealing $270,000 from his former employer, Sidney Mitchell, president of the Electric Bond and Share Company.

GREAT PROGRESS IS SHOWN BY NASH CARS

Seventh Place at New York Show Awarded Makers of This Auto

"The New York show for 1922 echoed many things interesting to every Nash owner," says C. P. Rockwell, of C. P. Rockwell, Inc., New England distributors of Nash cars and trucks. "Of chief interest, perhaps, is the fact that this year the Nash Motors Company occupied seventh place at the show. Four years ago when this company first showed in New York with their cars at the New York show, it occupied twenty-seventh place.

"Since the allotment of places is governed by the year's volume of business, this matter of position is very gratifying to us all as it indicates a remarkable record of progress a five years' decisive handicap attendant because of a world war.

Mr. Rockwell further says: "With its fourteen millions of dollars in clear assets the Nash Motors Company is one of the strongest financially among the motor car manufacturers. Their position enables them to pass through the so-called survival of the fittest period."

RIDDELL LAUDS ARMS PARLEY DELEGATES

Briton Says He "Never Saw Abler Men" Than the American Delegates

London, Jan. 28 (By the Associated Press).—Lord Riddell, liaison officer of the British delegation to the Washington Armaments Conference, just back from the United States, entertained the American Luncheon Club with an account of his American experiences.

"I never saw abler men than those who represented America at the Washington conference," he said. "President Harding is a delightful man. I had a long talk with him—mainly about the price of newspaper advertisements," he added laughingly.

"When the history of this period is written," said Lord Riddell, "the President, Secretary Hughes and their colleagues will be given a high place."

Lord Riddell declared America was changing her policy and that the government believed the time was coming when it would be essential, if Americans were to maintain the high level of comfortable living which they enjoyed, to sell more of their manufactures abroad, especially in China, to which he said American firms were looking as the great outlet for her goods.

MAINE FIREMEN FIGHT BLAZE IN WINDMILL

Biddeford Experts Say Flames Were Startled by Friction of Bearings

Biddeford, Me., Jan. 28.—Biddeford firemen were confronted with something unique in the line of fires when they were forced to travel four miles into the country where the mercury rested at 35 below zero to fight a fire in a windmill on the farm of John Hemmingway on the Hollis road, which destroyed all woodwork on the mill.

The firemen were able to prevent the spread of the fire to the dwelling. Just how the fire started in the windmill, which was still pumping in cold water from a nearby pond, is hard to explain.

Some of the experts in the chemical company which responded to the alarm offer the theory that the friction developed between the driving rods of the pumping apparatus, as the machine had been driven at terrific speed for the past two days by the fifty-mile gale which accompanied the cold snap, had resulted in the bearings becoming overheated and throwing off sparks which ignited the woodwork.

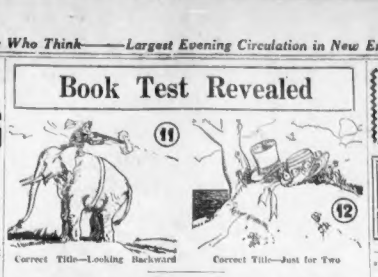
COST OF TRAINING DISABLED INCREASES

Washington, Jan. 28.—The cost to the government for the vocational training of men who were disabled in the World War, January 1 to date, was $2,000,000 between the months of September and November, according to figures provided by the Federal Board for Vocational Education. Colonel Charles R. Forbes, director of the bureau, attributes this increase directly to the "cleanup" campaign in which thousands of disabled war veterans, pursuant of the assistance the government offers them, are being rounded up and placed in schools and shops, where they are receiving instruction to overcome the handicaps of their disabilities.

ARRESTS PROTESTED BY LITHUANIANS

Washington, Jan. 28.—The Lithuanian government has protested to the League of Nations against the arrest by the Polish Government at Vilna of a number of Lithuanian officials of that city, according to a dispatch received by the Lithuanian information bureau here. The American, British, French and Italian Governments also have been informed of the incident, the dispatch said.

Book Test Revealed



Correct Title—Looking Backward

Correct Title—Just for Two

A young woman in Dorchester wrote to the Book Test editor a day or two ago warning him that if he dared to call Drawing No. 11 anything except "In the Reign of Terror" there would be trouble. The young woman will have to bring on the trouble, for the Correct Title of the picture is "Looking Backward." When the drawing appeared for the first time, on November 19, one contestant wanted to know if that was a monkey or the elephant's back. Which, considering the fact that Mr. Artist furnished the rider to be a caricature of the Test Editor, was scarcely complimentary. "Looking Backward," then, and we'll proceed to the next picture.*

Only a time about No. 12, which nobody will deny is "Just for Two."

Getting about 22,000 circulars off the presses, and making 22,000 envelopes ready for them, isn't proving the simple little thing it looked like, but the work is under way. For safety's sake the letter has been dated February 1.

Reading here the other day of the number of requests that had been received to "please change my title for No. ——" one or two contestants came to the conclusion that this was the thing to do. NO titles have been or can be changed once the parcel left the hands of the contestant. Nor have any "straw" additions been recognized. The Rules plainly provided that the answers must be sent in "all together or one time." To follow any other course would be to keep the polls open until next Christmas, and we should never know how the Book Test came out. As it is, we hope to establish a new "time" record.

WHICH comic series in the Boston American do you like BEST?

Which comic series in the Boston American do you like the LEAST?

The Boston American will give fifty original drawings to its readers who write the best letters on the above subject.

Each of the fifty winners may designate his favorite series, and an original drawing by that artist who created this series will be given each winner.

Everybody is eligible.

The letter must be divided into two parts—the first part devoted to the writer's opinion of the comic series which the participant regards as best, and the second part to the comic series which the voter regards as least meritorious.

A voting blank is printed herewith.

Use that with your letter. The test will end on February 1. Men, women and children are eligible. Only one vote and letter permitted to each participant.

All letters should be addressed to the Comic Editor Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Letters may be either written in pen and ink or typewritten on one side of paper.

Let's have your letter and vote at once.
